Lousy Business Sale

After reading all the surveys and listening to our customers, it seems that business in the comic industry is lousy.

We want to jump start your business and ours.

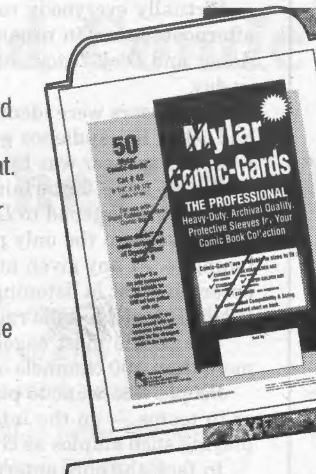
So, we're going to have a "lousy business sale". Here it is:

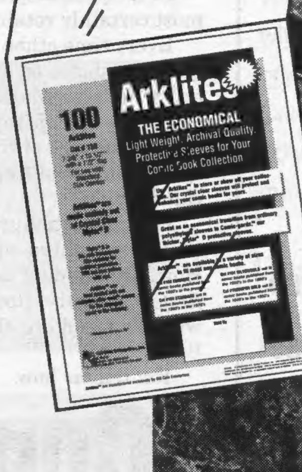
You get what you pay for – and sometimes you don't even ge that. Sure, we could offer unbelievably low prices for everything and then not deliver, but who would trust us after that? And yet there are suppliers out there who do just that. We have been in the preservation business for over twenty years, and are proud to say that we are the longest continuously operating company in the industry. We are here today and we plan to be here for a long time. Unfortunately we can't say the same for some of our "competitors".

While our competitors have been out of touch and "reinventing the wheel", we have been coming out with new products such as Time-Loks™, Thin-X-Tenders™, Life-X-Tenders™, and Comic Temps™ among others.

For fourteen years, we manufactured both 4 mil. and 1 mil. Mylar® sleeves under an exclusive trademark license from the E. Gerber Products Co. Now that the license has expired, using the same equipment and technology as before, we are manufacturing and distributing our own trademark 4 mil. Mylar® sleeves (Comic-Gards™) and 1 mil. Mylar® sleeves (Arklites™).

We can give you a whole list of reasons to do business with BCE, from ease of ordering with toll free numbers to immediate shipment of orders to an unlimited guarantee, but there is only one reason that's important. Bill Cole Enterprises, Inc. has INTEGRITY. And that's something that seems to be lacking lately.





Comic Gards™ 4 mil Mylar® Sleeves

Editorial

By Maggie Thompson

Fragmentation.

When entertainment producers around the country try to figure out where their fields are going — and, often, who is going to pay to sponsor their products — they'll have to consider audience fragmentation.

In the 1940s and 1950s, the composition of the national audience at a given time was often easy to identify. In summer, you could walk down a city's — or a village's — streets and listen to the Amos and Andy show as you walked by each house. Virtually everybody listened to it — all at the same time. Movie producers had a couple of chances to reach people: in first-run theaters and in rerun houses. Almost everyone went to see a major motion picture as soon as possible. Then the film would be withdrawn unless — a few years later — it was deemed worthy of theatrical rerelease.

Virtually everybody read a newspaper — maybe both the morning paper and the afternoon paper, in urban areas. And virtually everybody knew the characters in Li'l Abner and Dick Tracy and Blondie, because virtually everybody read their strips every day.

Advertisers were identified with specific shows — to the point at which Jack Benny had jokes his audience got instantly when he'd refer (years after their sponsorship, when his sponsor was Lucky Strike) to Grape Nuts or Jell-O.

But no more. Entertainment has fragmented. I was probably the only person in the country who listened to Life of Reilly last Saturday — maybe even last week. And you may have been the only person in the country who listened to whatever you were listening to. At any given minute, the national audience of people who want to listen for entertainment is listening to an incredible variety of CDs and audiotapes. Fewer and fewer listen to specific radio programs at specific times.

The people most eager to watch entertainment in their homes are choosing from more than 100 channels or taking their pick of videotapes and discs.

People who want to play games can pick from an incredible variety, whether alone or in teams — on the internet, with a computer, via role-playing interaction, or even playing such staples as checkers and chess.

In fact, the only entertainment — aside from personal appearances — that will almost certainly retain large, simultaneous audiences is sports.

Every time other entertainments fragment, however, it means the biggest games or books or shows or songs are a little less influential. You can be a comics fan without ever reading a Marvel comic book, although Marvel is the biggest comic-book publisher. And a fan of, say, the new Doctor Fate may be bored by the old Doctor Fate — while a devotee of the old Doctor Fate may be repelled by the new Doctor Fate. As the comics audience fragments further, financial support for tiny comics companies, too, can dwindle.

Fragmentation will be with us for some time to come, and it's an economic factor that entertainers will have to take into account — and a few will take advantage of. How? By building devoted core audiences, for one thing — audiences eager to be the first to read the story, see the movie, play the new game. By building core audiences who want and are able to collect all the material, no matter when they come across it. By —

You tell me how.

Announcing a new policy on buying games and videos from Diamond Comic Distributors.

They're cheaper.

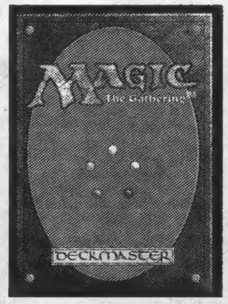
We wanted retailers to buy more games and videos from us, so we thought up a few clever ideas. But none of them made more sense than to give retailers what they wanted...a better discount on buying games and videos from Diamond!

50% Off Games.

We've raised our discount to retailers on almost all games to 50% off retail price. Now, you can get the best-sellers from FASA, Decipher, White Wolf, Wizards of the Coast, and other gaming manufacturers at a considerably lower price!

Plus, all game items (including collectible card games) now count towards Diamond's overall standard discount!



40% Off Videos.

On videos, we've raised our discount on most items to 40% off. Now you can stock your store with the best-selling anime offerings from A.D. Vision, Central Park Media, Polygram, Viz Video, and more!

One Stop Shopping.

Now more than ever, Diamond is working hard to be the one-stop shopping source for your store's video and gaming needs. Look for new games offered at 50% off and new videos offered at 40% off in the December Previews Catalog.

It's one new policy that we think retailers will really like.

You can depend on us.
Because we depend on you.

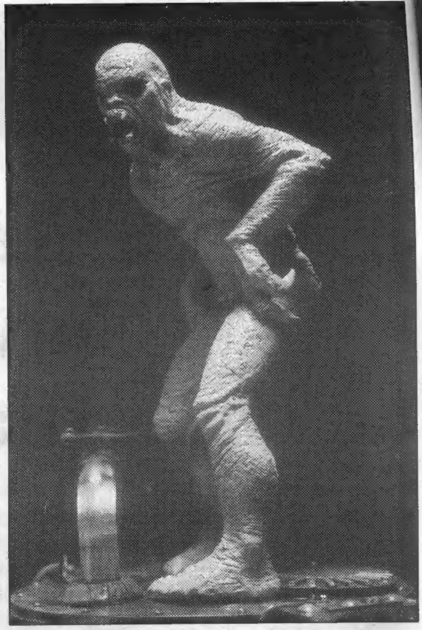
Flukeman statue is no fluke from Dark Horse

Statue is first in series based on 'X-Files'



The Flukeman statue

Dark Horse Comics is expanding its line of figurines co-produced by Bowen Designs to include creatures from The X-Files. Fox has given Dark Horse the exclusive rights to produce painted figures of the monsters, aliens, and other creatures from the television series.

The first piece to be produced under the arrangement will be The Flukeman, a monster from the episode "The Host." Measuring 10" high, the ⅙th scale model features many details of the sewage creature, including realistic slime.

Like the rest of the upcoming line, The Flukeman comes fully painted and is individually numbered and presented in a full-color collectors' box.

Eisner Award-winning sculptor Randy Bowen has sculpted the figurine. Bowen will be the sculptor for all of the subsequent figures.

"I'm a big fan of The X-Files and am proud to be associated with the show in this way," said Bowen. His initial sculpture for The Flukeman was unveiled at Comic-Con International in San Diego this year.

Dark Horse Publisher Mike Richardson said, "Dark Horse has a rich history with Fox, which began with the publication of our first Aliens comic book in 1988. I'm happy we can continue to be part of the Fox 'family' with this project based on The X-Files."

The Flukeman is scheduled to ship in January and retails for $125. Only 5000 individually numbered copies will be produced for U.S. distribution.

'2000 AD' publisher to launch film and TV development company

According to an article in the Nov. 8 Variety, Egmont Fleetway, the Danish owner and publisher of a number of British comics, including the long-running weekly 2000 AD, has announced plans to open Fleetway Film and TV in London.

The company could develop projects based on the characters, such as Judge Dredd, A.B.C. Warriors, D.R. and Quinch, Rogue Trooper, Slaine the Berserkerer, and Nemesis the Warlock, that have appeared in 2000 AD over the years.

Couple marries in comics shop

When Superman and Lois Lane were married in October, the event took place in a comic book; when Eric Specht and Amy Sheets were married Saturday, Oct. 5, they were surrounded by comic books.

The couple exchanged vows in the collectibles area of Bookery Fantasy, a Fairborn, Ohio, comics shop. The newlyweds said they chose the store because they both enjoyed the people and the products they encountered there and because they couldn't think of any other place they both liked as well.

The store, located at 16 W. Main St. in Fairborn, closed the collectibles area and adjoining book section of its 7000-square-foot store from 3 to 5 p.m. to allow the wedding to take place. Approximately 40 family members and friends attended the ceremony.

The wedding party prepared for the ceremony at Foy's Costume Shop, located next door to Fantasy Bookery, and the reception was held at Giovanni's Ristorante.

'Tommy' is cartoonist Jay Martin's dream

Tommy by Jay Martin is a daily and Sunday comic strip distributed by United Feature Syndicate. It follows a little boy and his action-hero dream guide and began Oct. 7 in nearly 100 newspapers including The San Francisco Chronicle, The Chicago Tribune, and The Houston Chronicle.

According to the syndicate, "Tommy, the main character of the strip, waits each evening for Gus, his dream guide, to concoct a fun and sometimes frightening dream of the night. Gus, however, would rather snooze than scare, and his lackadaisical attitude towards his job ends up getting the pair into humorously thrilling adventures in worlds limited only by the imagination of the young boy."

Martin said he has been a cartoonist since childhood, when he won a national contest to "create a super villain." He inks and colors Mr. Boffo and Willy 'n' Ethel for his father, cartoonist Joe Martin. A recent graduate of Lake Forest College, where he earned an honors degree in art, Martin resides in Chicago.

Steve Ditko returns with 'Strange Avenging Tales'

Steve Ditko, co-creator of such mainstream icons as Spider-Man and Doctor Strange, is producing a new, quarterly series scheduled to ship from Fantagraphics beginning in February. The title is Ditko's first creator-owned series in years.

Fantagraphics President Gary Groth said, "A Fantagraphics-published series by Steve Ditko was probably inevitable." Ditko's association with Fantagraphics began more than a decade ago, when Groth approached the artist with a proposal to republish Ditko's controversial Mr. A stories. Ditko had drawn the Mr. A stories throughout the '60s and '70s and published them in various fanzines.

"I had corresponded with Ditko for years," said Groth, "and admired his determination to express his philosophical point of view in his own comics and thought his work should be collected." It was collected in two volumes of The Ditko Collection in the early '80s and is long out of print.

"I was talking casually with Ditko one day," said Groth, "and I just happened to mention that I thought the stories he did for Warren Publishing's Creepy and Eerie titles in the '60s using a wash technique were among the most beautiful drawings he ever did. He agreed and told me how much he enjoyed working in wash. So why hadn't he worked in wash since? I asked. He told me that the occasion hadn't come up, and I said that, if he wanted to do any new work in wash, I'd publish it. He thought that was a swell idea, and the result is Steve Ditko's Strange Avenging Tales."

Ditko spent several months playing with a wash technique he hadn't used in nearly 30 years and finally perfected it to his satisfaction, said Groth. The lead story in each issue will be executed in wash tones, while the rest of the comic book will be presented in Ditko's black-and-white pen and ink. Steve Ditko's Strange Avenging Tales will be a quarterly, 24-page black-and-white series of stories and vignettes.

Issue #1 introduces readers to Ditko's world view through his *noir*ish crime fiction. The lead story, "The Baffler," features a new, enigmatic Ditko hero.

"The Spoilers File" is a series of self-contained vignettes about petty crime and moral corruption in modern society.

"In Due Time" harkens back to Ditko's Marvel horror comics from the 1960s. Its unconventional page layouts and depictions of the supernatural are similar to Ditko's work on the early Doctor Strange stories.

Steve Ditko's Strange Avenging Tales #1 also includes some one-pagers and a short suspense story dealing with split-personality disorder. The title will retail for $2.95 and is suitable for all ages.

Market Guide

Paul Dyroff, P.O. Box 181303, Casselberry, FL 32718.

Collectors have become very price-conscious, according to Dyroff — to the point at which "shows have almost turned into flea markets in the last three or four years." His customers generally expect discounts, he said.

Dyroff reported a wide range of Golden Age titles that are in demand by his customers. The most-asked-for title, he said, is Quality's Lady Luck. Other Quality super-hero titles are also popular, he said, the least popular being The Barker and The Barker appearances in National.

All Timely super-hero titles, especially Captain America, Marvel Mystery, and Human Torch, are in demand, said Dyroff, "although price has become a factor, and many comic books priced at higher than $300 no longer sell for me at guide level. Usually a discount of 10-20% on larger purchases is required."

From DC, pre-hero titles are the most-asked-for by Dyroff's customers, but those titles rarely materialize, said Dyroff, "and, when they do, the seller's asking price reflects this scarcity (i.e. guide or better in most cases)." However,

DC super-hero titles are also in demand, especially Superman, Batman, Wonder Woman, All Star, More Fun, Flash, and Green Lantern. Dyroff has seen increasing interest in Sensation and Comic Cavalcade.

All early Fox super-hero titles, including Fantastic, Wonderworld, and Mystery Men are in demand, said Dyroff, especially those with Lou Fine art. Among later Fox comic books, Dyroff said Phantom Lady, All Top, Zoot, and the Baker-Kamen Brenda Starr are always popular. "At some shows, I've seen these comic books priced above guide, but I haven't seen them moving real quickly at those levels."

Dyroff said he has seen increased interest in many Archie/MLJ super-hero titles which had previously inspired little sales activity among his customers. Customers, he said, have been asking for Jackpot, Zip, Top Notch, and Pep, as well as Archie's teen humor titles. "Once again, price plays an important role," said Dyroff, "and, in the case of the humor titles, prices under $20 sell in the 50-80% range, but more expensive comic books have to be discounted, usually at least 40-50% before you get anyone's attention. Has anybody sold a Katy Keene lately?"

As for ECs, "Get 'em while they're hot," said Dyroff. "Mad comics ... are becoming very hard to find." Mad* #8 ©1953 EC Comics. →

Fiction House titles, like those of other publishers, have not been selling well at higher prices, said Dyroff. "Planets sell well under $100 and most other [Fiction House] titles sell under $50," he said. "I have been an aficionado of this publisher for a long time and had anticipated stronger price increases over the years than have actually occurred. Planets have always led the way pricewise, but, since I kinda-sorta like all the Fiction House titles in no particular order of importance, I don't mind not having to pay mind-numbing prices when these comic books become available."

All EC titles (including Pre-Trend) are selling at 60-80% of guide, except Frontline Combat and Two-Fisted Tales, which are selling at 50-60%, Dyroff reported. "Get 'em while they're hot, as these were possibly the best comics ever made," said Dyroff. "Mad comics and magazines are selling at close to guide levels, and any related items (except the paperbacks) are becoming very hard to find."

Dyroff said the pre-Code crime and horror genres have "cooled off somewhat," though most issues will still sell at guide. Issues referred to in Seduction of the Innocent and Bailey and Wolverton titles still sell at up to twice guide, if priced according to grade, he said.

"Atlas, Harvey, and Superior are, for the most part, moving well at current levels," said Dyroff.

Recent noteworthy sales

In 1997 — on the 50th anniversary of the alleged saucer crash at Roswell — Kitchen Sink Press will publish a full-color squarebound book on UFO graphics, tentatively titled Saucers Attack! It will not address the reality or non-reality of the saucer phenomenon. The book will focus on visual interpretations of flying saucers using popular-culture sources from the late '40s on, the more lurid and unusual, the better.

The book will draw on UFO images from such sources as pulp covers and illustrations, movie posters and lobby cards, advertisements, metal and plastic toys, trading cards, and comic-book covers. We currently have well over 100 images but need twice or three times that number to edit the material into the strongest collection.

I appeal to Comics Buyer's Guide readers who have comic-book covers featuring UFOs (or any other of the above items) in their collections to contact me. I will purchase needed items at fair market value. If you prefer to loan items we need, we will return them promptly in perfect condition after making transparencies, we will pay shipping both ways, your name will appear as a credit in the book, and you'll receive free copies of the published book.

Please send photocopies of what you have to my attention at the above address or fax a description or photocopies to me at (413) 586-5895. Thanks in advance to all the Comics Buyer's Guide readers who will help make Saucers Attack! a reality.

[I talked with Denis about the project after receiving this letter, and it turns out that he'd also appreciate receiving any checklists readers might have of saucer material. I pointed out that Ray Palmer's Flying Saucers from Other Worlds alternated at one point with his Other Worlds magazine, for example, and we agreed that we didn't have a handy reference specifying which science-fiction magazines, for example, actually had nice saucer art, especially when it comes to interiors.

Hey, wasn't C.C. Beck's Fatman a flying saucer in his alternate identity? And, of course, Tubby first came across Sammi and his fellow saucer travelers in Tubby Four-Color #461. Not to mention UFO Flying Saucers and, of course, Weird Science-Fantasy #26. Come to think of it, didn't we run a multi-part series on flying saucers in the comics in CBG some years ago? Let's pitch in, folks.]

This week I resigned my position as General Manager of Geppi's Comic World, the retail division of Diamond Comic Distributors, after more than four years of service. I had my reasons. My position as the highest-ranking retailer in DCD's organization and my daily involvement with DCD staff gave me insight into the philosophies and inner workings of our largest distributor. After more than four years of silence, I am ready to tell all to the industry and let comics retailers know what DCD is really like.

First, let me tell you that I had been a long-time retailer who had worked for several national retail chains before joining the comics industry. Never before had I witnessed the paranoia, the back-biting, the rumor-mongering, and the doom-and-gloom predictions that I've seen and heard in our industry's journals and on the Internet over the past few years. Without a network of strong national retail comics chains, with the industry's poor self-image and sales declines being trumpeted, with the chaos our industry has experienced over the past several years, with the lack of national gatherings and communication between stores, uncertainty and nervousness are understandable and expected.

However, a lot of the paranoia and conspiracy theories, while entertaining, have been borderline ludicrous and have fueled the "Us vs. Them" philosophies prevalent in the retail end of our industry, hurting us all.

With absolutely nothing to lose, let me now expose DCD for what it really is, pulling no punches, starting at the "top":

Steve Geppi — Much has been printed about this national spokesman for our industry, much of it bad. He has been portrayed as a Scrooge counting his money, feeding his ego, and looking for ways to gouge more money out of retailers. For four years I have read the criticism about virtually every move that Steve and DCD have made in our own industry journals and read how each was another step in Steve's goal to dominate the market.

This is pure rubbish. Steve Geppi is the nicest, kindest, most generous person I've ever met, and the health of our industry and the preservation of its history are uppermost in his mind 24 hours a day, seven days a week. His national publicity is used to promote our industry, not himself or DCD. Trust me, the industry is in good hands with Steve Geppi. He reads and loves comics and never forgets that he was a comics retailer, like you and me. His genius has made him wealthy, but not at your expense.

Upper Management Again, like Steve, these people never talk about making more money for Diamond. The health of the industry and the success of every store are paramount to them, and they work long hours to benefit you, not to line their pockets. Yes, the more successful our industry, the more money DCD stands to make, but is that somehow evil? In addition, these executives read and collect comics, cards, toys, etc. They are fans, too!

DCD Employees They work hard, they are fans, they care, and they do their utmost to ensure that your account is handled well. There is tremendous pride in working for DCD and, especially, for Steve Geppi.

Well, what were you hoping for? I have never been in a DCD meeting where conspiracies were initiated, where evil doings were discussed, where ways to dominate the industry by running over the bodies of bankrupt comics retailers were formulated. From Steve Geppi on down, DCD wants you to be successful. Every day at DCD was not a picnic, but at no time did I find anyone anti-retailer.

I know that reading that Steve bought a comic book for thousands or that he opened a gallery to house pieces of comics history or that he purchased a publisher or a competitor makes you wonder and gives you conspiracy theorists a field day, but there is no dark side, no hidden agenda. Simply: DCD is guided by a great man who loves comics, who wants you to succeed as he did. You should be thankful that Steve Geppi loves his industry as much as he does and, despite his wealth that would allow him to walk away, that he still works 12-hour days for you.

P.S. Does anyone in Central Florida need an experienced comics retailer?

Tom Eaton
511 Rosemont
Saline, MI 48176

Let me give you a little background about myself. I order my comics through the mail-order service of The Westfield Company. I usually get my comics three or four weeks after they hit the stands. As a result, I just got done reading the four issues of The Final Night (five, if you count the Parallax issue). I have not read any of the tie-in issues of my regular titles. I started with Final Night #1 and could not put the rest down. I don't think the story, or my understanding of it, suffered any because I haven't yet read the tie-ins. I believe that when I do get around to them that they will only enrich the story, not detract from it.

All that said, the reason for the letter is because recently Maggie, I believe, wrote a review of Final Night saying that the last thing we need is another company-wide crossover. The fans don't want it and can't afford it. Speak for yourself! I enjoyed last year's Underworld Unleashed as well as this year's Final Night. I like the format that DC used in these two cases. You can read the crossover or not. You can read all the tie-ins or not. You can readjust the normal titles that you collect every month that each have a brief explanation to keep you up to date enough to enjoy the issue. In any case, the decision is left up to the reader. Would DC like you to go full bore with every single issue? Of course it would. Would your local, or mail-order, retailer? Of course. But do you have to? No.

Now let's talk about the other company-wide crossover that everyone is talking about: "Onslaught." Is the crossover self-contained? No. Are the tie-in regular issues optional? No — just the opposite: They are required. Every issue of X-Men, Uncanny X-Men, or Avengers had crucial plot points that made the story hard to follow if you didn't read them. Were the bookend issues, Onslaught: X-Men and Onslaught: Marvel Universe, optional? No — just the opposite, if you wanted see how the story started, much less finished. Could you read just the regular issues you get without the crossover? Not unless you wanted to waste your money on a story already in progress.

Doesn't DC's cross-over seem more reader-friendly? I think so. Marvel's crossover seems like a marketing tool, which is fine, because it is a business and must make a profit. Just don't expect me to keep buying all these issues and then fork out even more. I have only been reading Marvel since the "Age of Apocalypse" storyline. I should have seen this coming when the wrap-up of the Sabertooth plot was ended in a special chromium-cover $3.95 issue. What a nice way to keep new readers coming back. I'll admit that the X-Men and family are pretty good reading, but don't think I won't switch back to only DC if Marvel does this just one more time.

My point is that DC, for the most part, is doing things right. Sure, it is a business that wants to make money, but is it doing right by the readers for the most part? I think so. Except for the Superman-Lois wedding special, I can't think of many stories that had to be finished in special editions that cost $3.95 or $4.95. (Who blames them with Lois and Clark? Once every 60 years is something special.) Marvel now is soliciting trade paperbacks of the "Onslaught" story, seven issues' worth, in one month's catalog. The total cost to readers is approximately $68 for one story! $68 on top of everything else you read that month! If you want to read all of Final Night, four issues plus the Parallax story, it would cost you $11. Big difference, right?

So please, Maggie, speak for yourself about DC's crossovers. I for one like what it is doing.

I'll begin with a confession: Yes, I wished Image ill. After years of hearing the constant hype surrounding every Image title, I longed for Image to fall flat on its face. Despite my fervent desire, Image continued to thrive with many of the original Image Six barely involved with their original titles. Despite their absence, Image overcame every challenge that faced it.

Every challenge except the founders themselves.

So I've gotten my wish. Image has been humbled. Am I happy? No, this painful melodrama reminds me of the adage "Be careful what you wish for; you just might get it." To pull out of its tailspin, the industry needs every company to produce its best work to lure new readers into the fold. Having Maximum Press and Image entangled in a bitter legal battle won't help accomplish that goal: a lose-lose scenario for comics fans. I find myself engaging in a worse-than-useless exercise of what might have been. If only the Image founders had started slowly instead of jumping feet-first into the creation of their studios and personal fiefdoms. If only they had followed the example of Frank Miller, who elects to produce quality over quantity with his Sin City projects. If only they had concentrated on making great comics instead of becoming multimedia moguls. If only ... if only. As I said, worse than useless.

Image and Maximum Press won't die, regardless of what happens, but something did die this year. The camaraderie, the enthusiasm, and the common dream of the Image founders, all of these intangible concepts, died earlier this year. Even an Image-basher like me mourns their loss.

ence was more convincing than most such comicbook stuff, and even the minor heroes (like Takion and Mr. Miracle) had nice moments. Oracle — a perennial favorite character of mine — was very nicely handled and The Phantom Stranger — another perennial fave — even more so. And the sense of impending doom as the sun vanished and the Earth grew cold was in the best tradition of classic '50s s-f/horror. I thought Batman's two moments — vs. Vandal Savage in the Louvre in issue #2 and the coda with Superman at the end of #4 — were extremely well done.

I did not buy the Parallax tie-in special issue and, obviously, missing that made the climax weaker, which I resented (if it was that important to the story, it should have been in the miniseries). I'm betting Captain Marvel fans were probably unhappy with his appearance here. (I just don't think he works in the DC universe.) Well-written, very beautifully drawn, mostly self-contained, and over in a month: not a bad way to handle a major cosmic-event crossover, for future reference, comics publishers.

Of course, for a far more cosmic, gutwrenching, ultimately horrifying handling of the same basic concept, I would refer readers to F. Paul Wilson's NightWorld novels. They are best read in order of publication, though you could juggle any of the first three, then take the last three in order: The Keep, The Tomb, The Touch — then Reborn, Reprisal, and finally the epic masterpiece NightWorld.

It is a series which defies easy categorization: The Keep and NightWorld are as much heroic fantasy as they are horror, and both have the sense of the epic and apocalyptic of the best Lovecraft horror; Reborn and Reprisal are pure terror, with not one but two of the most memorably horrific scenes in modern horror fiction to boast; The Touch is a quiet, psychological horror story that is virtually a medical thriller; and The Tomb — the best of them, and one of my favorite novels — is urban action-adventure with just a single element of the supernatural thrown in to foul everything up for its protagonist, also one of my favorite characters in modern literature of any genre, the quixotic Repairman Jack.

Like a great comics opus, each novel introduces heroes with varying abilities, weaknesses, and means of coping and, by the time the sextet climaxes, has brought them together to stand against an ultimate foe and armageddon. Truly not to be missed. (And if you take the bite and fall in love with the series, Wilson has written a host of related short stories which provide background information, ancillary tidbits about his mythos, and other appearances by the series' characters — including Jack.)

Anyway, that's my contribution for the day. I enjoyed Final Night — and encourage all to hunt up its superior predecessor. Deprive yourself of it at your peril.

It seems as though my letter a few months ago about the surreal conditions affecting some aspects of collecting old comics has sparked a bit of controversy. I received considerable feedback at the San Diego convention in July and at WonderCon in April, including a delightful conversation with Maggie — I can't imagine how she finds time to communicate so well with so many people in such a short time! Thankfully, it seemed as though the majority of the folks who responded, including several retailer friends, understood that the letter was neither intended as a direct slam at anyone, nor as a screed about "woe is the poor little old collector me."

I freely admit I'm utterly baffled why anyone but a pure investor would spend an extra $100 — much less an extra $10,000 or more — to obtain a comic book only marginally better than a lesser copy.

I can understand (well, sort of) why a collector would pay $300 for a Very Fine to Near Mint copy instead of paying $30 for a Good copy, even though I can't imagine myself doing it, even if I had the money.

I appreciate nice-condition comics as much as the next person (though I actually dislike file copies, because they don't have the karma of a previous reader's enjoyment). But I obtain Fine or better copies only if I'm lucky enough to find them at good or very good prices. All I want is to own a non-brittle, complete copy of the comic book without serious defects. If the back cover has a one-inch tear, I frankly don't care, as long as this is taken into account when the book is priced. I believe the majority of collectors are with me on this issue (no pun intended).

However, I believe we also must look at it from a retailer's point of view (and I can hear all those retailers with whom I have shamelessly bargained, muttering, "Huh?").

Let's begin by repeating that only a few hundred seriously active collectors, maybe a thousand at most, are old enough to remember the pre-Overstreet Price Guide days of the 1950s and '60s. This is why folks like Maggie and me still marvel whenever we walk into a major convention, however many times we have done it in the past three decades. We can never, ever get over the sheer joy of seeing thousands upon thousands of Golden and Silver Age comics in the same room.

As I have written before, I haunted the comic-book stacks of the three used bookstores in my hometown for a full 10 years (1956-66) several Saturdays a month, until my high school graduation. I put ads in the local newspaper. I looked for old comic books everywhere I could. Even so, I found maybe 500 or 600 issues, tops, in all those years, and fewer than a dozen of them were pre-1945.

Folks, do you realize how tough it was, at least on the West Coast, to find old comic books, until retailers (both individuals and in stores) began to gather and sell them as a business? Even in the second half of the 1960s — after Rocket's Blast-ComicCollector began to gain wider circulation and advertising and after a handful of dealers began sending out pricelists a few times per year — old comic books weren't that easy to find.

I daresay I see more old comics advertised in the typical issue of CBG than I saw offered all year in 1966, from all sources combined, other than from one Bay Area collector who had thousands in his attic and two fabulous early retailers in Los Angeles (the unforgettable Cherokee Book Store and Collectors Book Store).

The Overstreet Price Guide and other factors in the 1970s, such as the growth of conventions, changed all that. Comics suddenly became much more available, if increasingly less affordable. Beginning about 25 years ago, it really was possible to collect an entire long run (or even an entire company), if a collector wished to. When old comics books were worth a nickel at a used bookstore 35 or 40 years ago, or even a few dollars in the 1960s, it really wasn't worth the time of many entrepreneurs — the sort who actually make a nice living on this stuff — to become comic-book retailers.

But, like it or not, the ever-increasing value of old comics in the past 25 years literally made it possible for the hobby to expand and enabled collectors to find what they want. If a retailer has to spend $20 per old comic book but can make a $20 profit on each issue, he or she is going to be a lot more likely to make it a viable business than if he or she finds them for a quarter and sells them for a dollar or two. It's that simple, and all the complaining in the world won't change that.

Believe me, I, too, question price-guide increases that many old comics experience year after year, without fail. But trust me, folks, this, too, shall pass. Every hobby has its high-end items for one reason or another — and its high-end buyers and investors. Action #1 will never be cheap — never. But there are simply too many old comics out there — and too many people unwilling to pay $500 each for routine issues — for the vast majority of the material in Good (worn but complete) condition to go beyond affordability.

Of course, that depends on how you define "affordability." My friend Bud Plant kids me that much of what I write defies conventional wisdom, so let's look at the issue of affordability in that light. Granted that "hot" items, such as Very Fine or better Schomburg cover issues or Timely super-hero comics, are already beyond affordability for most collectors, simply because high-grade Golden Age comics truly are scarce, with no more than a few dozen high-grade issues of any title in existence, even the most popular titles. If you want near-mint Schomburgs, you either pay the price or you go without. That's true of the same situation in any hobby.

But I have seen $25 or $35 Good Schomburgs languishing in retailers' boxes throughout a convention, simply because no investor will touch them and the true collector may have to watch his or her money. Eventually they will sell, it's true, but the truth is that it would be easier for a dealer to sell 100 Near Mint Schomburgs at $300 each than it would be to sell 10 Good Schomburgs at $30 each.

It's the same thing with much of the California real-estate market — it's easier to sell a million-dollar home in the right location than it is to sell a $250,000 fixer-upper in the same area. (That's about the cheapest price for a fixer-upper in many areas!) This is because there aren't very many million-dollar homes and there are at least several hundred highly paid computer executives competing for these trophy homes.

Let's look at it this way: Many Golden Age comics are no more expensive, and in some cases are actually less expensive, than they were 25 or 30 years ago.

For example, take Fawcett's Captain Marvel. In 1966, most issues of this title were selling for $1-5 in Good or Very Good condition. Now, many of the same issues of Captain Marvel sell for $12-25 in the same range. A comic book that sold for $3 in 1966 is economically about the same as a comic book that sells for $15 to $18 today. The only comics that have skyrocketed in terms of real dollars are either the items in choice condition or key issues — or esoteric fad titles which may or may not be in high demand a few years down the road.

Some comics, especially humor titles, are actually cheaper today in real dollars than they were 30 years ago. And, of course, both cheap and expensive comics are much more available now than they were then, even though you're far less likely to uncover a treasure trove for a few dollars.

Sure, I'd love to pay 50¢ or $1 for old comics, the way I sometimes did in the 1960s, but that's the same thing as paying $3-6 now. And there are still plenty of old comics in the $3-6 price range, albeit usually in lower grades.

And consider this: Lower-grade old comics from any era are often a better value than current comics, especially relative to 30 years ago. In 1966, $5 was good for one to five routine 1940s or '50s issues, but it would buy you 41 new comics (at 12¢ each). These days, 41 new comics will set you back about $100, but that same $100 can purchase 5 to 30 or more old comics in Good condition. That's why so many collectors have given up buying most of the new comics (in addition to frustration over the frequent lack of life-affirming values, which is the big reason I have abandoned most of the current anti-life, blatantly pornographic, and misogynistic comics scene). Old comics are simply better values.

To me, the current crisis is not so much about money, but money relative to condition. I have seen such a drastic redefinition of "Good" that it's totally dismaying. Revised Overstreet grading standards notwithstanding — sorry! — a Good comic book is simply not a Fair comic book.

Just because a comic book is complete doesn't make it Good. Any comic book with a serious defect may be described as, for example, "Very Good except for no back cover." But if the comic book doesn't have a back cover, or if it has a four-inch tear through the middle, or if a page is torn out, or if the spine is totally split, it's not Good, unless the specific defect is described.

In short, "Fair" does not mean "Good." That's my big gripe: Far too many sellers are selling Fair comics as Good. If you purchase comics from a reputable dealer, such as Jim Payette or John Hauser, you get what you pay for. Those guys still don't try to pawn off Fair comics as Good. But too many others have lowered the standards to the point where, if the comic book is all there, they call it Good. And that's no good!

I like Ron Pussell's definition of what I consider to be a Fair copy: He does not try to pawn if off as Good but, instead, calls it a "reader copy." That means the entire issue is available for reading, but it's not in collectible condition. You know what you're getting, and that's the whole idea, isn't it?

If you want the truth. . .
If you want to know what to do about it. . .
You need to hear ALICE VACHSS!

How do we deal with the threat and the reality of rape and sexual assault on college campuses? How can we change the climate of terror these realities create for young women? How can we make our campuses safer for everyone? ALICE VACHSS has the frontline experience and the practical knowledge to help students, service providers, and administrators create the changes we so desperately need. The author of the critically acclaimed Sex Crimes: Ten Years on the Front Lines Prosecuting Rapists and Confronting Their Collaborators, a New York Times Notable Book of 1993, Alice Vachss served as both a trial attorney and Chief of the Special Victims Bureau in Queens County (NY) District Attorney's Office where her unit set the standard for effective innovation in the war against sexual violence. Now Director of Campus Consultants, a consortium of former sex-crimes prosecutors, detectives, and therapists, Alice Vachss addresses all of these issues and offers concrete solutions for a change. . .
Starting here, and starting now!

PACKIN' A PUNCH
WHEN LAST WE LEFT OUR HEROES --
SPUNKY, WE STAND BEFORE THE MIGHTY SLAUGHT MACHINE, WHO WAS ONCE THE BALD PSYCHIC GUY AND LEADER OF THE FORMER PEOPLE!
NOW HE EXISTS SOLEY TO SCREW UP THE COMIC UNIVERSE AND BOOST SALES!
W-WE ARE COMPELLED TO PULL ITS LEVER!
AND HEAVEN ONLY KNOWS WHAT WILL COME UP WHEN WE DO!
K-CHUNK!
WHAT'S THAT RUMBLING NOISE?!
IT'S BEGUN!
THERE'S NO TURNING BACK NOW!
BEHOLD! THAT MASSIVE, LOOMING SHADOW COMING TOWARDS US!
WHAT CAN IT BE??
OBSERVE ITS SHAPE! IT MUST BE A BEING OF TRULY UNIMAGINABLE POWER!!
AS ARE ALL THINGS BROUGHT FORTH BY SLAUGHT MACHINE!
IT CAN'T BE--AND YET, IT IS! THE FRIGHTENING DEVOURER of WORLDS!
WHAT INSIDIOUS INTERPRETATION IS THIS OF ONE TO WHOM ENTIRE PLANETS ARE MERE MUNCHIES?
HOW ABOUT A NICE BLAST OF THE POWER COSMIC?!
SOMETHING OF A DISAPPOINTMENT, WOULDN'T YOU SAY?
AS ARE ALL THINGS BROUGHT FORTH BY SLAUGHT MACHINE.

"If you expect to get away with the kind of blatant self-promotion attempted by David Seidman in his closing paragraph, it helps if you've sent something that's as much fun as Elvira, Mistress of the Dark."
— Tony Isabella

Welcome, loyal readers, to the first of a series of year-end clearance columns. I have a huge pile of newspaper clippings and review items on my desk, and they all have to go to make room for next year's huge pile of clippings and review items. So, while I go searching for a landfill big enough to hold this stuff, here's a bunch of odds and ends to keep you entertained.

☞ My pal David Quinn, who is certainly one of the braver souls in the comic-book biz, sent me a preview copy of Razor #1 (London Night, $3.95) by his own bad self and artist Steve Scott. Here's what I sent back to him:

I don't like "Bad Girl" comics like Razor. I think they are generally the base product of writers and artists who have as much experience with actual women as I have flying the space shuttle. I am relieved that their readers are unlikely to breed others of their kind. The gene pool is sorry enough these days.

That said, let me quickly add that your "Everybody Hurts" was an unexpected delight. You took a character I disliked and brought her to life in all its varied shades. The blood-and-breasts crew will probably be sorely disappointed, but I was downright moved by Razor's compassion and restraint. I was even more impressed at how you told such a gutsy story without splattering guts all over the pages. What are you, some kind of writer? You done good with this one, kiddo.

Just two more quick notes on this comic book. Scott's drawing and storytelling are both good; he is worth watching. Razor's outfit in this story is far more practical than usual for the "Bad Girl" genre. Dress for success, ladies.

☞ Legendary movie critic and social commentator Joe Bob Briggs reported the latest triumph of a comics industry superstar in his recent review of Day of the Warrior, the new Andy Sidaris movie starring Julie K. Smith. Briggs wrote:

> Pay special attention when Julie K., decked out in her trademark pink mini-dress and six-inch heels, goes to a Beverly Hills jewelry store to pick up some black-market rocks. The jeweler is none other than Kevin Eastman, legendary millionaire comic-book artist and (co-) creator of the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles.
> Kevin pretty much realized the comic-book guy's dream this year when he got married to fantasy woman Julie Strain herself, who models for Kevin's Heavy Metal magazine.

In other movie news, it's not too late to invest in my first motion picture undertaking, a raucous comedy based loosely on the last stand of alleged Unabomber Ted Kaczynski. I call it Gnome Alone. Interested parties should contact my financial director, Max Bialystock, as soon as possible.

☞ Gary Spencer Millidge's Strangehaven (Abiogenesis, $2.95) is an incredibly intriguing comic book from a creator who has seemingly sprung from nowhere. From the first of the five issues I've read, Millidge knocked me out with his sureness of story and art. I can't believe I hadn't heard of him before this.

Here's the short version of Strangehaven:

Handsome teacher Alex Hunter ends up in the small village of Strangehaven after a beautiful specter forces his automobile into a close encounter with a tree. He recovers from this accident in a local bed and breakfast, meets a few of the citizens (including a young lady who takes a definite shine to him), gets his car put back together, and leaves — only to end up back in the village by the end of the day. This time, he stays. Meanwhile ...

It's the odd "meanwhiles" going on in Strangehaven that have reviewers comparing the series to Twin Peaks. A secret society meets in the first hour of the new day. A Brazilian shaman tells fantastic tales of his mysterious tribe. Another villager claims to be an extraterrestrial. Not to mention the ghost.

In the hands of a lesser talent, Strangehaven could become a incomprehensible mush of soap opera and weirdness. But Millidge moves his characters and plot with such confidence and craft that he never loses his readers. We may not know where he's taking us with this story, but he is clearly in control of it.

Suggested for mature readers, Strangehaven merits my highest recommendation. It's a treasure.

☞ Creators Terry Collins and Bill Neville have taken their way cool Explorers ($2.95) comic book to Tapestry, the Caliber Comics imprint "devoted to all ages and today's audiences." Their title is still packed with adventure, humor, intrigue, and personality, but now it's part of a line with such other Isabella favorites as Patty Cake, Terror Tots, and Trollords. Check them out; they are all terrific.

• We have a real-life hero story out of Perth, Australia. 51-year-old Brian Howson lowered himself from a single-engine Cessna 4000 feet in the air and, while three other passengers held his legs, pulled the plane's faulty rear wheels into place and so prevented a crash landing. Howson volunteered for the task after ground controllers suggested the problem could be fixed manually. The plane landed safely.

☞ Lots of Max Allan Collins news to report. He's currently in post-production on his written-and-directed Mommy 2: Mommy's Day, which stars Patty McCormack, Rachel Lemieux, Brinke Stevens, Paul Petersen, Gary Sandy, and Mickey Spillane. Since distribution is already lined up for this made-in-Iowa production, you'll see the finished movie on your video-rental shelves in February.

Damned in Paradise, Collins' new Nate Heller book, should be in those proverbial better bookstores everywhere. I haven't seen it yet — Are you listening, Santa? — but, on my list of favorite mystery books, the earlier Heller novels are second only to Ed McBain's 87th Precinct series. I love them.

On the comic-book front, look for a new Ms. Tree mini-series (with artist Terry Beatty) from DC Comics and a 300-page graphic novel, Road to Perdition, from the same publisher's Paradox Press imprint. It sounds like a big "M.A.C. attack" is coming our way, which is just fine by me.

☞ In the "better-late-than-never" department, this letter came in from Claypool Comics Marketing Director David Seidman a couple months ago and disappeared in the black hole that is the Isabella filing system. Seidman wrote:

> Thanks for the complimentary words about Claypool Comics in your Aug. 23 column. We think our comics are pretty good, but it's always nice to hear others say so.
> In that column, you mentioned the Elvira #37 story "Crisis in Gorilla City." I'm afraid that you misquoted us. Since DC owns Gorilla City, we named our story "Crisis in Gorilla Town" — a small distinction, perhaps, but it's the difference between parody (one of the staples here at Claypool) and theft (a practice we fiercely avoid). If you would correct the error in your column, we'd be grateful.
> On a happier note: Your Aug. 30 column asked for examples of familiar names in unfamiliar contexts. I'm enclosing a copy of our Elvira trade paperback, whose cover features a photograph by a Joe Orlando. When I called Orlando's studio, I asked if he was any relation to the Joe Orlando of the comic-book field. The studio had never heard of him. (For shame!)
> Also, I've found there is a David Seidman who's a notorious man-about-town here in L.A., known for his blade-sharp wit, elegant appearance, air of sophistication, and — oh, wait a minute, that's me. Never mind.

OK, here's a tip for any marketing directors in the house. If you expect to get away with the kind of blatant self-promotion attempted by Seidman in his closing paragraph, it helps if you've sent something that's as much fun as Elvira, Mistress of the Dark (Claypool, $12.95). Ten funny stories by Paul Dini, Kurt Busiek, and Richard Howell — with artwork by James W. Fry III, Howell, Jim Mooney, Neil Vokes, and Jim Webb — and I'm willing to believe that Seidman is, indeed, a bon vivant. Even with that little piece of toilet paper hanging from the bottom of his shoe.

Buy Claypool Comics and help support Seidman in the style in which he'd like to become accustomed.

More odds and ends next week.

Tony Isabella, "America's most beloved comic-book writer and columnist," asks you to take a minute in the middle of the hustle and bustle of the approaching holidays, to remember what's really important about this most wonderful time of the year.

OK, we'll give you a hint. Tony's birthday. Dec. 22. Three days before Christmas. Which means he's gonna get gypped. Again. Like every year. Unless you do something.

Send your cards, presents, comments, presents, review items, and, oh, yeah, presents, to: Tony's Tips!, P.O. Box 1502, Medina, OH 44258. Stop the nightmare.

Huh? What was that, Brent? But — but — Oh, all right.

Maggie says we were just kidding about the presents.

Quesada and Palmiotti celebrate with cards

By Rob Samsel
For Dynamic Forces and Event Comics

Joe Quesada and Jimmy Palmiotti recently celebrated their second year of self-publishing as Event Comics. With that anniversary, the duo said they feel it's time to tackle a project they've always envisioned for their main character, Ash: a trading-card set.

The two are both self-proclaimed big comics fans and said they couldn't wait to see other artists' renditions of their character, so they started a pin-up series in the first Ash mini-series. The pin-ups were drawn by, among others: Barry Windsor-Smith, Jim Lee, Geof Darrow, Kevin Nowlan, and Mike Mignola. A trading card set was a natural, logical progression, but the first thing the duo had to do was determine which of the myriad trading card companies would produce the set.

According to Palmiotti, the process was actually fairly simple. "Some companies approached us, and we approached others; in the end we went with the best deal, which was from Dynamic Forces."

Dynamic Forces had produced two earlier trading card sets, Creator's Universe, and Creator's Alternate Universe, and Quesada and Palmiotti said they both thought the sets were of the highest quality, as well as featuring some of the top names in the industry.

"We talked to [Dynamic Forces'] Nick Barrucci," Palmiotti said, "and he gave us the deal with the most creative control doing the set."

Palmiotti had expressed concern that he didn't want to just hand the set over to a big company, have it call all the shots in terms of the set, and "have it end up looking bad."

Quesada added that Event and Dynamic, "shared the same vision of what the set should be about, which made the decision to go with Dynamic a very easy one."

Barrucci said it was his "love for the character and confidence in Joe and Jimmy's abilities" that spurred his interest in producing the set. He said he felt that Ash is the highest quality independent comic book in the marketplace today and thought, "that quality could easily translate into a great trading card set."

Palmiotti, who decided he wanted to personally oversee the production of the set, said that it was the little things he wanted control over that were very important in making the set a top-notch production.

Half of the art, which Palmiotti said is, "definitely the set's best selling point," is new, by a number of comics artists.

Palmiotti, Quesada, and Dynamic assembled the roster of talent for the series, a roster Barrucci called "the best in the industry."

Quesada and Palmiotti called in a number of their friends to work on the set, artists whose work they both loved, and that to Palmiotti was "another one of the little things we thought were really important in having control over the set."

The other "little things" Quesada and Palmiotti said they felt were important were to have people they'd worked with in the past work with them on the set. To that end, Dennis Calero and Atomic Paintbrush provided color for the set.

According to Quesada, Atomic Paintbrush currently handles the color separating work for all of Event's titles, and he added, "they do some absolutely fantastic work. I think they're the next big coloring house on the horizon."

For the design of the cards, Event utilized the skills of Unicorn Publishing, which had previously handled the website for Quesada's original artwork.

For the backs of the cards, Palmiotti said, "I wanted our friend Rob Samsel to write them, because he knows our comics better than anybody else does, and his sense of humor brings some tomfoolery into the mix." Ever the stickler for details, Palmiotti said that even the backs of the cards stress the names of the artists whose work appears in the set, so fans can easily identify their favorites.

Quesada and Palmiotti themselves contributed 12 new pieces of art for the set and Palmiotti said, "Joe's 10 cards are killer," while Quesada said, "The art deco theme I used for all my cards will make them pretty easily identifiable."

Fans of painted art will get new pieces from Tenuta, Ash colorist Reuben Rude, and Atomic Paintbrush's Dennis Calero, as well as Nelson DeCastro. Palmiotti joked that they had paid DeCastro in liquor for his card, "so that was a real good deal for us."

Event painter John Cebollero also contributed 15 paintings for the set, including reprints of his chapter headings from the Ash trade paperback.

Tony Harris, who will have his creator-owned mini-series The Reckoning published by Event in 1997, also contributed a new piece for the set.

The set also features work by a few artists Palmiotti and Quesada refer to as "legendary." These include: Paul Chadwick, Geof Darrow, Kevin Nowlan, Rick Leonardi, and George Pérez. Dan DeCarlo also contributed a piece to the set, an Archie-styled shot of Carrie and Libby from 22 Brides, that Palmiotti described as, "an awesome card, just awesome!"

Jim Califore and Peter Palmiotti also added two new cards to the mix. Rounding out the list are artists Quesada said the company as a whole "are huge fans of." These include Amanda Connor, David Finch, Batt, David Mack, Jae Lee, Dan Panosian, and Humberto Ramos.

Palmiotti joked, "We got all the people we wanted on our set, 'cuz we're that cool."

With all of the card products being released into the marketplace these days, the trick appears to be standing out among all the competitors' products. Palmiotti said he asked as many retailers as he could what were the determining factors when it came to being able to sell cards, and, not surprisingly, they all said that price was the determining factor for them and their customers, as well.

Both Dynamic and Event said they didn't want to scrimp on the quality of the set, but they wanted it to be affordable.

Barrucci said he was proud that the two companies were able to accomplish both goals. The set comprises 90 cards printed on 24-point stock with UV coating on both sides. The set also has a picture card subset, featuring all of the real-life people who appear in the comic book, as well as Quesada's two enormous cats, White Sox and Skeeter.

There are nine chromium chase cards (which Barrucci said will take collectors two boxes to track down), in addition to a chromium super chase card appearing approximately once every three boxes that is signed by both Quesada and Palmiotti. The suggested retail price of the packs will be $1.99, which Palmiotti said he feels is inexpensive, "even though it looks like we spent a fortune to create this set." He added that he "hopes retailers are happy that we were able to get such a high-quality product out there without it costing five bucks a pack."

Quesada added, "Both Event and Dynamic wanted to make a set that emphasized bang for the buck, and I think we really succeeded in a big way."

The set was originally scheduled to be released for the Christmas season, but, with the set tying into so many new Event projects set for the middle of the year, fans and collectors can look for them next spring.

Palmiotti said he hoped this would cause the cards to have a longer shelf life than most card sets and hoped retailers would have the confidence to reorder the cards, if they sell out of their initial shipment. He said this shelf life should be attributed to the fact that the card set will coincide with so many of the projects Event has planned for 1997.

Event has a Humberto Ramos/Mark Waid Ash mini-series as well as a new ongoing title scheduled for this spring, in addition to some creator-owned series.

Palmiotti said that the set ties directly into Event's spring editorial push and added, "As the weather gets hotter, so will Event Comics. The middle of '97 will be Event's coming-out party."

With a host of new comics products set to debut in 1997, the Ash trading card set may be the icing on the cake for that party.

By Maggie Thompson

•The Copybook Tales is $2.95 from Slave Labor Graphics and is written by J. Torres and drawn by Tim Levins. The first issue (Jul 96) does an excellent job of flashing back and forth between comics buff Jamie as a kid and comics buff Jamie as an adult — and the focus of the stories is Jamie and his life. The second issue (Oct 96) is a little trickier to follow.

The comic book began as a mini-comix series — and letters indicate both admiration from readers and slight frustration over the difficulties of following the bouncing timeline. The stories are rewarding: pleasant reading about pleasant people you'd like to know. Heck, you probably do know some of them. Moreover, the inside front cover carefully identifies (and I hope other comics pros are taking notes here) the characters by picture.

As I *re*read the issues, it quickly became clear that present-day action is indicated by thick black borders on the panels — clearly shown on the inside cover of #1, though not on #2. So reading the issues should be a cinch. And a pleasure, to those of us who have spent our lives tracking down a missing issue or not quite fitting in among people in the real world. (Note that "heartbyrne" is "a psychosomatic condition resulting from an emotional attachment to comic books; symptoms include anxiety, depression, and an overwhelming urge to periodically quit collecting comics.")

• Flash Plus #1 (Jan 97, DC, $2.95) is one of a series of DC team-ups. This one's written by Mark Waid and Brian Augustyn, pencilled by Eduardo Barreto, and inked by Gerry Fernandez. The character being "plussed" in this case is Dick Grayson (aka Nightwing) — and these best buddies since their teen years are taking their annual vacation together. The relaxed, old-friend dialogue is convincing but doesn't leave the reader out in the cold (a difficult stunt). Casual chat including a discussion of miniaturizing a sound system into a costume ("I've been telling him he could make a fortune selling to the Justice League alone") accompanies their adventure in New Orleans, where they visit a Mystery House. Done in One fun.

It may seem like a week but it was probably only seven days ago that you read the first half of this diary of my latest New York expedition. We now rejoin our trip, already in progress —

Monday morn (Oct. 28), I went over to Mad and DC to see Nick Meglin and Denny O'Neil, respectively. Then I sloshed over in the rain to meet Buzz Potamkin, one of the great animation producers, at the Friar's Club, the venerable show business institution where old Jewish comedians mingle with older Jewish comedians.

Now, what would an Evanier trip report be without an impossible coincidence? I'd been trying, with no success, to reach a friend by phone. Louise DuArt is the best female impressionist working today. But though she's great at making an audience laugh — even with stuff I've written — she's bad at sending out change-of-address forms, and I had her old number, which now belonged to some guy who only spoke Spanish. At least, I think it was some guy; when phoning an impressionist, you can never be too sure.

As I arrived at the Friars — my first visit ever to the one in New York — it was pouring rain. Deciding to do my good deed for the year, I assisted a lady who was trying to get a suitcase up the front steps. That's right: It was Louise DuArt. Figure the odds on that one.

She introduced me to two great stand-up comics, Corbett Monica and Freddie Roman. (What a week: First, I meet the greatest film director in Pakistan and now Corbett Monica!) If you're in Atlantic City and Louise DuArt is playing there, go see her. She's sensational.

This evening's outing was to see Miss Saigon, a show I'd seen and enjoyed several years ago. A friend of mine named Kathleen wanted to see it and she had a friend who could arrange for House Seats. In case I haven't done it before, let me explain what House Seats are and why it's a good thing to know someone who can get them for you.

In a theatrical production, many of the important folks have it in their contracts that they get a few House Seats per week, sometimes per performance. These are not free tickets; they're just very good seats, which the important person can arrange for a friend to purchase or can purchase themselves for someone. This can be an enormous convenience when a show is selling out. Even when a show has plenty of available tix (and most do, at least on weeknights), a House Seat is usually better than any you can obtain from TicketMaster. As a rule, House Seats must be claimed and paid for 48 hours before the performance or they're released for sale to the public.

Kathleen has a friend with a large role in Miss Saigon and access to House Seats, so it was arranged for me to purchase them. Then Kathleen's feet were suddenly wanted in Florida.

Kathleen is a professional foot model. You've seen her tootsies in sandal ads, toenail polish commercials — even one Desenex spot, as I recall. Boy, does this girl have feet. The rest of her is pretty good, but, since she started getting foot gigs, no one ever wants to photograph her from about the shins up.

Her hooves even get fan mail from men who fall in love with her toes and want to marry whatever woman is attached to them. (What a fragile form of affection on which to build a relationship; one bunion and it's over.) She even gave up her former profession — dancing — the better to keep her pedal assets in mint condition.

Some shoe company booked her feet for a print job in Miami, and she decided to accompany them there. I wound up giving the still lovely, still talented Heidi "Ace" MacDonald the chance to see Miss Saigon from Kathleen's friend's House Seats, which turned out to be in the front row. Any closer and we'd have needed Equity cards. (Heidi, you'll recall from last week, also accompanied me to The King and I. In fact, Heidi has first priority on all shows where the cast is 50% or more Asian, so she's eagerly awaiting the next revival of Flower Drum Song.)

Miss Saigon is a tear-jerker of a show, interpolating strains of Madame Butterfly with the tale of a Vietnam vet and the war bride he left behind. The lyrics are a bit stilted at times, the music a bit bland — but the staging and storyline more than satisfy, even if the ending does leave most with moist eyes. (In the immortal words of B. Bunny, "What did you expect in an opera? A happy ending?") Afterward, I stuffed Ace on a subway train and came back here to the room to write this.

Which reminds me: A year or three ago in this spot, I told of a nifty device with which I travel. It's a Walkman that not only plays cassettes and AM-FM radio but also receives VHF TV sound. This enables me to watch TV late in hotels without bothering folks in adjoining rooms; I turn the sound off on the TV, tune the channel in on my little Walkman, and listen to the audio via headset, thereby disturbing no one. I lamented that Sony had stopped making this creature, and many of you (well, two) wrote to ask if there was any way to procure one.

Well, there is now. I dunno if they heard us but Sony now has a new, improved model. It's the WM-FX435 and, if not for it, I might not be listening to Conan O'Brien as I type this. This wondrous invention should be available wherever Sony stuff is sold, and this is the last time I'm going to mention it — unless, of course, they send me a free one. Good night.

And now it looks like Tuesday, Oct. 29, a day which started with a jaunt to the Warner Brothers Store on Fifth Avenue, wherein you can't buy Warner Brothers, not even Jack, but you can buy every single item that has ever existed on the planet, but with "Space Jam" on it. I was most interested in scoping out the new Yogi-Flintstones-Scooby merchandise they're hawking, now that Hanna-Barbera is part of the awesome Time-Warner monolith.

Three weeks ago, I attended a party in LA for the kick-off of the new kids' line-up on the WB network. (Excuse me. I should have said, "The Dubba-dubba-dubba-dubba-double-you-bee." They even make the people there answer the phones that way, which shows you how infectious it can be to hold the copyright on Porky Pig.)

The subtext of the party, beyond kicking off the new season, was to make everyone aware that the two groupings of characters are now one. Just to make certain that all got the message, they brought in costumed characters to walk around and had the person in the Bugs Bunny suit dancing with the person in the Barney Rubble suit, and the person in the Scooby-Doo suit dancing with the person in the Yosemite Sam suit, and so on. Daffy Duck kept refusing to let Huckleberry Hound lead.

I always feel sorry for the people who have to wear costumes like that and dance, even when every third song isn't, as it was that evening, the Macarena. If I ever had to take such a job, I'd arrange to wear the Michigan J. Frog suit. Then I'd just sit there and tell my employer that I was staying in character by only dancing when no one was looking. (Sorry — I'm rambling.)

I have enormously mixed feelings about seeing the H-B characters (which I love) becoming kin to the WB characters (which I also love). During my employment at H-B, I enraged a couple of execs by declaring loudly, and in the presence of their superiors, that they had to stop putting badly drawn Yogi Bear pictures on badly made toys; that — even if one had no affection or respect for the characters — it was just bad business sense to cheapen the properties that way. This viewpoint did not go over well in meetings. I was by no means the only one on the premises saying this; I was merely the most annoying.

There was a gentleman working then for H-B's parent company, who shall remain unidentified here, mainly because I'm blocking on his name. He was vociferous in treating the characters like property to be strip-mined for immediate gain and a favorable quarterly report, never mind the long-term damage. The cheaper you could do something, the better; never mind that Scooby looked wrong — "off-model" is the industry term — or that George Jetson was uttering words that George Jetson would never say. This exec did not believe that quality was cost-efficient, and I'd like to think that the successes of the Disney and Warner Bros. Stores have proven him wrong. (The man is no longer with Hanna-Barbera, by the way — unless that was him at the party in the Hong Kong Phooey costume.)

So it's nice to see Fred and Barney properly rendered, stitched onto a shirt that wasn't made in Kathie Lee Gifford's sweatshop, and to see Scooby and Yogi and Huck on Fifth Avenue instead of cringing behind the Blue Light Special at K-Mart. But it would also be nice if the two sets of characters retained their individuality. Appearing under the same banner, managed by the same folks, they could easily bleed into one another. Years ago, when DC Comics acquired the rights to Captain Marvel — the one who says "Shazam," the one created as an alternative approach to Superman — the first thought of at least some in Warner Communications was that they

Shadowman and his former self

Among the perpetual relaunchings of Valiant heroes issuing from Acclaim, I was particularly interested in seeing how Shadowman would fare at the hands of new writer Garth Ennis. Unlike most of the Valiant heroes, Shadowman was not a dusted-off revival of a Gold Key character, but a fresh creation with a genuine spark of originality. The mystical back alleys of New Orleans were an underused setting in comics and gave the series much of its atmosphere.

The new regime has not been kind to the old Shadowman. Suffice it to say Jack Boniface did not go gentle into that good night, and a new Shadowman is in town. So far, there's not a lot of room for character development, since the protagonist is an autistic assassin who spends his leisure hours meditating on a teddy bear. No doubt there are many mysteries to be gradually unfolded here.

New Orleans remains, but it's hard to see it in the art of Ashley Wood, which seems not so much bounded by panels as projected onto clouds of smoke. Wood's work is stylized in the manner of Bill Sienkiewicz, which makes for some powerful covers but very murky storytelling. It was Ennis' talent for dialogue, however, which drew me to this project, and he wastes no time conjuring a Pulp Fictional mixture of brutality and banality, as a couple of killers discuss the merits of The Dukes of Hazard before mutilating a new victim. It remains to be seen whether his writing skills are sufficient to flesh out what is so far more shadow than man.

now had two Supermans. I'm not sure the good Captain has ever recovered from that assumption.

I pondered all that on the way back to the hotel and a meeting with some animation folks, then I met one of comics' best writers, Jo Duffy, for lunch. I dragged Jo along on my afternoon outing to the Jim Henson Studios, where taping was in progress for The Wubbulous World of Dr. Seuss, a clever new Puppet/Muppet show that is well worth catching on the Nickelodeon network. Mr. Henson may be no longer with us, but his infectious creativity is alive and active among a new generation of Muppeteers.

My final Broadway outing was another viewing of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, still starring Nathan Lane, though not for long. You may recall my reviewing this when I saw it in previews earlier this year. What I don't think I reviewed at the time was the rotten seats we had.

One of the authors, Larry Gelbart, had kindly arranged for me to obtain House Seats (you remember House Seats) but there was some sort of mix-up. Though they'd been paid for and set aside, I didn't pick them up in advance, and they were given to someone else. My date and I wound up in a row of the St. James Theater that should not exist. That is, when they built the theater, they installed rows of seats properly befitting the room — and then someone found a 17th of an inch in the back of the house and decided to squeeze another row back there. That was where we were sitting — with my knees pressed into where my appendix used to be and Nathan Lane the size of a Cheerio. I was not going to make the same mistake again.

This trip, Mr. Gelbart again arranged for House Seats. This trip, I hiked down to the St. James a few days early and took custody of them. The gent at the box-office window handed them over, announcing, "Row A on the aisle." (Gelbart is one the greatest comedy writers this business has known. In addition to this, he wrote or co-wrote Tootsie and Oh, God and Sid Caesar's show and he developed and produced the *M*A*S*H* TV show and he has more awards than I have socks, and I have a lot of socks. But, right at that moment, I was most impressed with what great House Seats he gets. Row A, by the way, turned out to be the third row, which was perfect.)

Behind me in line, a woman got hysterical: "How did you get those seats?" She charged up to the window and demanded, "I want Row A like him!" The man behind the glass said, "Sorry, I can't do that." The lady wasn't pacified. As I strolled out of the theater lobby, she bolted from her place in line and followed me into the street yelling, "How did you get those seats? How do I get those seats?" She followed me halfway up the block, all the way past Sardi's, then she charged back to the box office. She shoved aside the next buyer, and, in the distance, I could hear her yelling, "I demand Row A! I want those seats!"

It doesn't happen often. But every once in a while, I feel real important.

To sit in those great seats, I took the lovely and talented Catherine Gruenwald, spouse of the much-missed Mark Gruenwald. If I can get somber here for a moment (and I can — it's my column) one of the things I heard from folks this trip was how weary they are from hearing about people getting sick and people dying. It happens, we all know, but lately it's been happening too often and, of course, to all the wrong people. Losing Mark, who hadn't an enemy in a world where it's hard to not make enemies, was the real kicker. Like, right in the solar plexus.

Catherine loved the show, I loved the show, everyone loved the show. Nathan Lane has made this role his own, enriching the funny performance I had seen in previews with new and hilarious nuances and business, as well as a touch of Jerry Lewis. I have a new theory that the longer a performer remains in a role, drama or comedy, the more they assume the characteristics of Jerry Lewis. This has been true of everyone I've ever seen more than once in a play including, interestingly, Jerry Lewis. Even Rex Harrison, by the end of his run as Henry Higgins, was probably performing in My Fair Lay-deeeeee!

Forum is a wonderful play, and, since I have a column in the works about its history and why the movie wasn't as good as you think it was, I won't explain why here. But Nathan Lane is in it through February, and, if you can get your butt to Manhattan before then, you won't regret going — unless they seat you in the last row. (When Lane departs, Whoopi Goldberg is taking over, and my recommendation is up for a renewal, of which I'm dubious.)

I had to cut this trip short due to a small crisis back home (nothing serious), so I didn't get to see everyone I wanted to see. But you're probably sick by now of hearing about me traipsing about Fun City, as absolutely no one there calls it. Thank you for indulging my enthusiasm for all the nifty people and shows I got to see, and I hope some of it rubbed off on you.

I'm finishing this on my laptop on American Airlines flight 199 back to LAX. They're about to make us turn off all portable electronic devices, so I'll sign off now. (By the way: Does anyone know what's happened to Keanu Reeves? He doesn't seem to be in the in-flight movie. I do hope he's all right.)

Attention, Sony People: You can send Mark Evanier's payment for the plug to 363 S. Fairfax Ave., #303, Los Angeles, CA 90036. And he could also use one of those neat little pocket televisions. Don't make me start pushing Panasonics.

Even Rex Harrison, by the end of his run as Henry Higgins, was probably performing in My Fair Lay-deeeeee!

Forum is a wonderful play, and, since I have a column in the works about its history and why the movie wasn't as good as you think it was, I won't explain why here. But Nathan Lane is in it through February, and, if you can get your butt to Manhattan before then, you won't regret going — unless they seat you in the last row. (When Lane departs, Whoopi Goldberg is taking over, and my recommendation is up for a renewal, of which I'm dubious.)

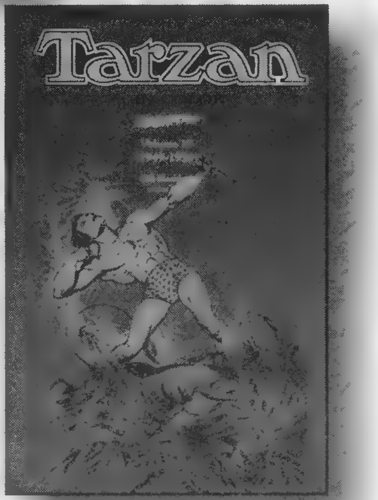
I had to cut this trip short due to a small crisis back home (nothing serious), so I didn't get to see everyone I wanted to see. But you're probably sick by now of hearing about me traipsing about Fun City, as absolutely no one there calls it. Thank you for indulging my enthusiasm for all the nifty people and shows I got to see, and I hope some of it rubbed off on you.

I'm finishing this on my laptop on American Airlines flight 199 back to LAX. They're about to make us turn off all portable electronic devices, so I'll sign off now. (By the way: Does anyone know what's happened to Keanu Reeves? He doesn't seem to be in the in-flight movie. I do hope he's all right.)

Attention, Sony People: You can send Mark Evanier's payment for the plug to 363 S. Fairfax Ave., #303, Los Angeles, CA 90036. And he could also use one of those neat little pocket televisions. Don't make me start pushing Panasonics.

COMING IN FEBRUARY

FIRST COLLECTION!
ONE BIG HAPPY
"Should I Spit on Him?"
Rick Detorie
At last, a collection of this endearing strip with a growing and extremely loyal following. Rick Detorie brings together 3 generations in his whimsical strip. From the kids Ruthie and Joe, to their parents Ellen and Frank, and yes, even the grandparents who live next door: Rose and Nick, hey, it's one big happy! And as you might know, Ruthie often steals the show...
8½x9, 128pp., B&W, color cover, trade pb.: $9.95
ISBN 1-56163-172-8



THE LAST VOLUME!
TARZAN Vol.18 (1949-1950)
Burne Hogarth
Here is the final volume in NBM's massive undertaking of reprinting the entire Tarzan Sunday run from Foster to Hogarth! Hogarth outdid himself in this last year before quitting in a disagreement with the syndicate. Following popular vote, the pages will be presented using the full pages, not the half-pages which had an extra frame. Blackbeard provides a final salute in his introduction.
10x13¾, 64 pp., full color jacketed hardcover: $37.50
Signed and numbered edition: with a special tip-in plate signed by Hogarth and strictly limited to 140 copies: $60.

New from Eurotica:
LOLITA, Vol.3
Belore
Spanish hot babe Lolita and her blonde sister Marga hire out a male stripper for a good time only to be paid by him after they're finished! Visiting Morocco, they teach a couple of virgin studs a trick or two...Two hunks save Lolita from a stick-up; their reward: a double entry "stick-up" of a different kind! And more raunchy fun... Adults only.
8½x11, 64pp., B&W, color cover, trade pb.: $9.95
ISBN 1-56163-177-9
also available:
LOLITA Volumes 1&2
Some of the raunchiest just plain fun Spanish sex comics you'll see! Adults only.

Send $1 (refundable with your first order) to cover postage for our newest 40-page catalog coming back from the printers shortly. It is full of pre-70s comic books, pulps, Sunday pages, ERB first editions, BLBs, premiums, character toys, movie stuff, original art, rare Rock & Roll concert posters, etc. that we consider of a collectible nature.

Regular customers will automatically be receiving our newest offering in the mail within a couple weeks.

Many thanks to the many thousands of you who have ordered from me in the past. "Beginning my 4th decade of wheeling and dealing comics material in fandom through the mail!"

200 Comics: $37.50

200 Superhero comics for only $37.50. Why the odd price? POSTAGE IS INCLUDED. All comics are in Fine to Near Mint condition and range from the 70s to now. Your order will contain only superhero books with the majority being Marvels and DCS. This is a great way to spruce up those 50 cent boxes. At these prices we cannot guarantee any specific titles, but we will try to include the best we have available and a few "treasures" to keep you ordering more!
We accept VISA and MasterCard, checks and Money Orders. Credit Card orders sent out within 48 hours. Call Cory Glaberson at (708) 386-6550 between the hours of 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. CST or send order to:

READ TEMPLATE YET?

"TEMPLATE, through finely judged pacing, effective rendering and some terrific dialogue, is superbly told. The dialogue flows very smoothly and it seems every line of art adds to the drama or to a character. In any case, TEMPLATE, is very dramatic comics. There's also no shortage of humor, all of which works well."
-SIMON BAKER (THE COMICS REVIEWER)

SILVER GRIFFIN TM
CENTAUR CITY
Color. Devlin Janax/William Marden
Thunderstone is a Centaur Half man, half horse. He's not nice. In fact, he's about as rotten as you can get. A bad seed from day one, he's made himself a hammer that can shake the earth, enslaved his peaceful centaur tribe, and is eyeing his nervous neighbors' lands. But a "Mission Impossible" suicide team of a warrior and female thief who can't stand each other, a sorcerer whose spells don't always work, and a mysterious centaur guide are out to eliminate him with EXTREME prejudice If they don't kill each other first. This one is a 96 page graphic fantasy novel with attitude This one is NOT your father's fantasy with cute elves and stalwart champions. Be warned.

TABLETALK

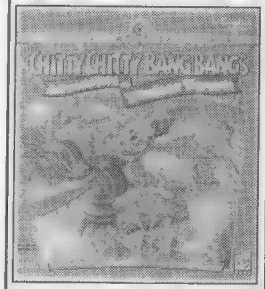
THE COMICS BUYER'S GUIDE TO GAMES

compiled by Brent Frankenhoff and John Jackson Miller

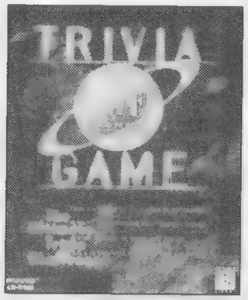
Reviewed by Joyce Greenholdt

It's hard to find new computer software that's not on CD-ROM these days. Gone are the days of swapping multiple floppy disks to install a new game, and I can't say I'm sorry for that. This month, I'm looking at some of the CD-ROMs available today, many aimed at comics and gaming fans.

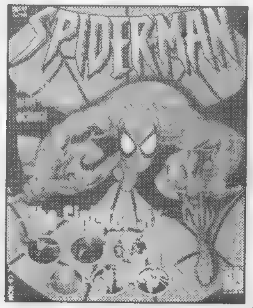
On the table:



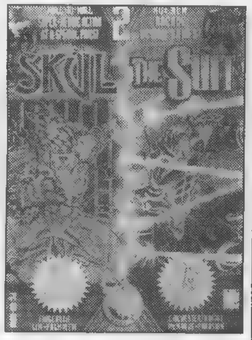
Chitty Chitty Bang Bang's Adventure in Tinker Town



Sci-Fi Channel Trivia Game

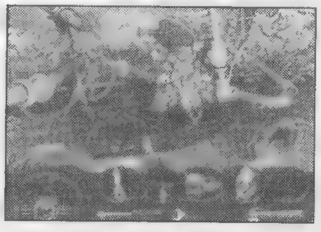


Spider-Man: Sinister Six



Virtual Comics: They Call Me The Skul & The Suit #1

With any software, the most important thing to check before buying is the system requirements, to make sure your computer can actually run the game. Most of these games are available for both PC and Macintosh computers. The minimum system requirements (exceptions are noted with individual titles) for PCs are: 486/33 MHz processor; 8 MB RAM; SVGA graphics; and double-speed CD-ROM. For Macintosh programs: 68040 Macintosh or Power Macintosh; System 7.0 or later; 8 MB RAM; and double-speed CD-ROM. Most also require a mouse or other pointing tool. Again, be sure to pay close attention to the minimum system requirements — and the manufacturer's recommendations, which often exceed the minimums.



Chitty Chitty Bang Bang's Adventure in Tinker Town, MGM/UA Family Entertainment, ISBN 0-7928-3272-8

Audience: Ages 4-8

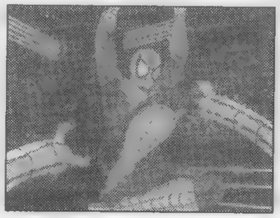
System: PC — 486/66 MHz or faster (Pentium recommended); Windows 95. Macintosh — Sound Manager 3.0 (3.1 or later recommended).

The flying jalopy from the MGM film Chitty Chitty Bang Bang is your guide to a fantasy world of oversized appliances in this new game. Armed with a screwdriver, wrench, and hammer, players must first repair Chitty, then help fix up Tinkertown, finding missing parts and putting things back together with the appropriate tool.

MGM bills this as an educational game for boys and girls from age 4-8, which, I imagine, it is. I had a lot of fun myself, taking things apart and putting them back together, though I expect the novelty wore off sooner. The instruction manual stresses that the educational benefits for children will be greatest when a parent and child play the game together. I have to say that I think parents will have almost as much fun as their kids if they do play it together.

It's a great integrated package — great graphics, great sound, great concept, with puzzles that will be challenging for younger players, but which don't dead end. If you get stuck in one direction, there's other avenues to explore until you find what you need. And, after looking at some of the screens depicting Tinker Town, I have to conclude that someone had way too much fun designing the graphics for this game. It's a combination of sharp 3-D renderings and more traditional drawings, with the addition of some pretty slick computer animation.

I think this is a great gift for younger children who have access to a family computer, especially right now, since MGM is packaging it with a copy of the movie Chitty Chitty Bang Bang on videotape for a limited time. In fact, I have a godson who will probably be getting my copy — as soon as I'm done playing with it, that is.



Spider-Man: The Sinister Six, $39.95, Byron Preiss Multimedia, ISBN 1-57260-020-9

Audience: Ages 6 and up

System Requirements: 486/66 MHz; 20 MB hard drive space, MPC-compatible sound; DOS, Windows 95, or Windows 3.1

This game offers an interesting combination of role-playing, puzzle-solving, and real-time action. The Sinister Six has gotten together again, and you, in the role of Peter Parker and Spider-Man, have to find out what they're up to and put a stop to it.

This is a more sophisticated game that it appears at first glance. There are six different storylines and outcomes based on the decisions you make during the game, and some puzzles will have different solutions from game to game.

When questioning other characters as Peter Parker, one thing I learned fast was to pick my questions (from a multiple-choice menu) wisely — after the game moved to the next scene before I had finished asking every possible question of every possible person I could interact with.

One of the nicest things about Spider-Man: The Sinister Six was its flexibility as far as setting difficulty levels, especially since there are puzzles you must solve and battles you must win. Puzzle difficulty and battle difficuly are set separately, at easy or hard level, at the beginning of a new game, giving four possible combinations.

If you're stuck on a puzzle (some of which have time limits), there are built-in hints which you may choose to access. Each puzzle offers two hints, plus, if all else fails, the solution, all accessible from the playing screen. As someone who deeply resents laying out anywhere from $30 to $50 for a new game only to find out that I'm stuck unless I shell out another $10 or $20 for a hint book (not to mention the time it takes to find and purchase the book), I appreciate Byron Preiss' consideration for its audience.

As far as action sequences go, well, when faced with most any kind of arcade-style or real-time challenge, it doesn't take long for me to start quoting from The Simpsons:

"Ach! I'm really bad at this!"

"D'oh!"

So I also appreciated the fact that you can practice every conflict with the villains between games. Plus, if you lose a showdown, the game automatically offers you a chance to replay it. The action sequences, I should add, come in two varieties: Spider-Man leaping from wall to wall to evade danger; and Spidey webbing various missiles or bad guys before they can do him harm — no arcade-style punching or kicking. I wish I had a joystick, though so I could have taken advantage of that option.

The only annoying feature that I found was in the information-gathering sequences — close up, the faces of people you talk to turn into pixilated, moving blobs, which didn't hinder the game, but did detract from my enjoyment.

With so many possibilities each time you play, there's a lot of entertainment to be had each time you start this game up.

Sci-Fi Channel Trivia Game, $19.95, Byron Preiss Multimedia, ISBN 1-57260-008-X

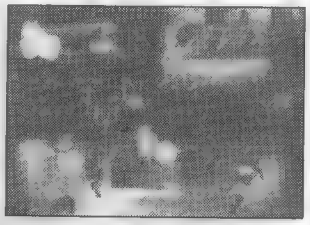
Audience: Age 6 and up

System: 3 MB hard drive space; MPC-compatible sound; Windows 3.1 or higher (Windows 95 compatible)

This is a quiz game which can be played between two human players or against the computer. It's just like Jeopardy, from the playing grid for each round ("I'll take Wormhole for 500, Alex"), to the race to hit your button first for the privilege of guessing the answer, to the fact that you lose points if you guess wrong. Except the host is a blue-skinned, pointy-eared, smart-mouthed alien who tends to morph into something else whenever it gets bored. And the questions are all multiple-choice.

There are four categories of questions: movies, television, comics, and the catch-all category Wormhole. And the program has lots and lots of questions for each category, so you should be able to play several games before you start noticing repeats. For the most part, the questions seemed accurate — the exceptions can probably be chalked up to programming errors, such as one occasion when the host, reciting a question, said something slightly different from the text displayed on the screen, and the answers displayed could have fit either version of the question. This sort of thing only happened a couple of times, though, in a couple dozen games.

It's also tricky, sometimes, realizing which player "hit the buzzer" first — we've both answered each other's questions on occasion, or let the time limit go by because "I thought you had that one." But it's a fun game, one which I hope will be made even better with releases of more new questions in the future.



Virtual Comics: They Call Me... The Skul and The Suit, $19.95, Byron Preiss Multimedia, ISBN 1-57260-027-6

Audience: Age 6 and up

System: 486/66 MHz; MPC-compatible sound

This package is packed with goodies, including two CD-ROM comic books, an actual printed comic book, and a soundtrack that can be played with an audio CD player in addition to two arcade-style games reviewed here.

Both games fit into standard arcade-game styles. The Skul gives you an overhead view of the character as he flies across the big city. You shoot at enemies, dodge their fire, and avoid tall obstacles (conveniently fitted with blinking red lights). Colored globes occasionally drift across the screen; by flying into them, you get extra powers. Depending on the color, you can increase your health, get extra lives, shoot faster, and so on.

The idea is to make it through five rounds of play, to defeat The Power, whatever that is (did I mention I'm really bad at this?). I did actually make it to the third round before running out of lives and time (time to get everything reviewed, that is).

In The Suit, you get a ground-level point of view as you move through the city, fighting off robots and alien invaders (some of whom, apparently enjoy driving pickups). As they pop out of windows or from behind dumpsters, you blast 'em. Blast 'em enough, and you're rewarded with a satisfying explosion.

Again, you can pick up on various colors of "power-ups" by shooting them. Also, fun new weapons come floating by every so often and can be acquired the same way as power-ups. I recommend the grenade launcher, though it never seems to last long. Every time you snatch a new weapon, the old one's gone for good, so be selective.

I had a lot more fun with this game, though again, I didn't have time to make it through the full five rounds. In both games, you can use the mouse or the keyboard (or a combination) to play. Both games also use comics panels to set up and conclude the action. They're both fun games if you like the arcade shoot-'em-ups, though perhaps with less variety in the backgrounds and opposition than most. On the other hand, you get a lot of extras with this package, too.

Comics NEWS

A new Caliber series from Steve Miller proves Rust never sleeps for long.

A crazed suitor sends aliens instead of roses in Aliens: Lovesick.

Warp expands again with Barry Blair's ElfLord.

Rust returns in a new ongoing series from Caliber scheduled to begin shipping in December. The character was created by Steve Miller 10 years ago, when policeman Scott Baker fell into an experimental vat of liquid rust and found that his skin had been replaced by metal. Rust hides from humanity in a salvage yard, using his powers over metal to fight criminals.

Miller will again write the new series with the help of artists of Mike Huddleston and Jim Mahfood. The 32-page, black-and-white title will retail for $2.95.

William Tucci has announced a new "print to order" policy on Crusade titles. The policy calls for smaller print runs, with fewer copies available for reorders.

Tucci said, "Speculating on comics makes for an unstable marketplace for retailers and publishers. The direct market was founded on the basis of retailers knowing what they need to order and comics publishers knowing what they need to print. The industry has gotten away from that in the last few years. Crusade has always extended its print runs to meet the reorder demand for our comics, posters, and other products, but, as the industry continues to change, we have to adapt."

Tucci said the policy is not an allocation plan, and reorders will be available but in more limited quantities. Crusade's line of trade-paperback titles is not affected by this policy and will continue to remain in print.

The spurned Dr. Dakien takes stalking to a new level when he sends aliens after his would-be love in Aliens: Lovesick, a 32-page one-shot scheduled to ship in December. Conceived as a companion piece to the Herk Mondo stories, this humorous take on the Aliens franchise is written by Richard Forg, Thierry Gagnon, and Randy Stradley and drawn by Forg.

Stradley said, "Some think that any Aliens story has to be scary and horror-filled. We like to play with that expectation a little. There are a lot of different genres that Aliens could be translated into — we like to mix it up."

The 32-page title is priced at $2.95.

Batman and Deadman are caught between the Gotham police force and the legions of Hell after an evil spirit frames The Dark Knight for a gruesome mass murder in Batman/Deadman, a 96-page hardcover graphic novel scheduled to ship in December. Written by James Robinson and painted by John Estes, the book is priced at $24.95.

Carrion returns from the grave in Spider-Man: Dead Man's Hand, a self-contained 48-page one-shot designed to introduce or re-introduce readers to "the Spider-verse."

Scheduled to ship in February, the 40-page story is written by Roger Stern and drawn by Darick Robertson. Besides Carrion, Spidey's life is further complicated by the reappearance of The Terrible Tinkerer and The High Evolutionary. The title is priced at $2.99.

Robb Horan's Safety Belt Man: All Hell comes to a cataclysmic conclusion, as the entire cast of archetisms, angels, demons, and humans gather for the transformation of the millennium in the November-shipping sixth issue. Priced at $2.95, the 24-page color title is painted by The Fillbach Brothers.

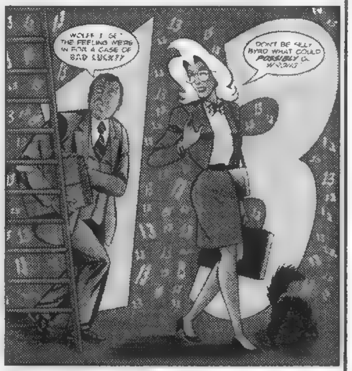
Re-Visionary Press reports it has carved out a niche for itself and doubled its net profits for 1996 by marketing its titles to retail outlets for adult products. Editor Jay Allen Sanford said, "After quite a bit of trying and fumbling, we're finally carried by most of the major adult bookstores, video shops, and direct-mail-order houses."

Sanford said only a small portion of the average sales of 20,000 to 40,000 per issue are to the comics direct market, "but that doesn't mean we're giving up on comics shops. We're doing some special incentives and promotions through the distributors, and we have a very strong retailer service department and marketing wing now."

Re-Visionary has also made changes in its editorial department, hiring Karen Misty as its new managing editor. Misty, who has a background in editing such men's magazines as Hustler and Oui, will oversee a three-issue project scheduled for 1997 called Triple-X Cinema: A Cartoon History.

Issue 13 is bad luck for 'Wolff & Byrd'



"What can possibly go wrong?" asks Alanna Wolff on the cover of Wolff & Byrd, Counselors of the Macabre #13, which shipped in early November. Little does she know. In this special "Bad Luck" issue, everything that can go wrong does. And that goes not only for Wolff & Byrd's supernatural clients (including the hapless Sodd, the Thing That's an It) but for the lawyers themselves.

Regular readers of Wolff & Byrd know that each issue has a completely self-contained story, but underlying back stories have been following the personal lives of the characters. Alanna Wolff got involved with high-powered attorney Chase Hawkins back in #8, but things aren't going too well for that romance in #13. Meanwhile, Jeff Byrd has been seeing supermodel Dawn DeVine (Chase Hawkins's ex-girlfriend), who has some surprises up her sleeve this issue. And let's not forget the duo's secretary, Mavis, who's been dating Tobias Bascoe ever since he accidentally called up an interdimensional creature that nearly destroyed the law firm's library.

What trouble does Toby have in store? And worst of all, the long-pending trial of Sodd goes awry.

"We get lots of letters from readers, particularly women," said writer/ artist Batton Lash, "who are all wrapped up in these characters' lives. They write things like 'Why is Alanna still dating Chase Hawkins? Can't she see through him?' and 'Jeff is such a nice guy, don't let him get hurt.' Which is great, because I've been writing about these characters for years now and they are pretty real to me as well."

Misty described the mini-series as "the first real overview of this cross-cultural phenomenon that has first-person input from so many important figures. Besides offering a historical timeline of events — including legal hurdles — we'll be recreating some of the most dramatic behind-the-scenes happenings." Among the adult-film-industry personalities who will participate in the project are Marilyn Chambers, Bill Margold, Hyapatia Lee, Porsche Lynn, Seka, and Kay Parker.

No writers or artists for the title have been announced yet, but Misty said, "I've been surprised at how many well-known comics creators are into erotic films. We're getting a lot of calls from people who are dying to illustrate a chapter on their favorite performer."

Michael T. Desing's Army Ants grew from digest size to full size with its November-shipping fifth issue.

The length of the black-and-white title has expanded from 16 to 24 pages. The issue will be priced at $2.50.

Desing said, "I feel like this is the right time for this. The only negative comments I've ever received about the title are that it's too small and too short."

Warp Graphics will begin a new line of non-Elfquest titles with Barry Blair's ElfLord. ElfLord began life at the end of the 1970s as a competitor of Elfquest. The most recent ElfLord story was published this year by Mad Monkey Press.

The series follows the elf warrior Hawk and his companion Windblade the ElfLord, as they wander through a world of magical creatures and mystical wizards. The first issue of a four-part monthly ElfLord mini-series is scheduled to ship from Warp in January. The two elfin heroes are the victims of dark magic, as Ravenclaw plots to abduct Windblade before the ElfLord can be delivered to the capital city of Kathay.

Blair will work with Colin Chan on the new ElfLord title and will also continue to produce new Elfquest stories.

ElfLord represents the first expansion of Warp since its recent downsizing to a single ongoing title. No other non-Elfquest titles are currently scheduled, but Publisher Richard Pini has designed a separate logo featuring a front view of a wolf's face for ElfLord and any other non-Elfquest titles that Warp may publish in the future.

HAVE MANY MORE...

Besides the above, have other coverless, 3/4cvr as well as full cover comics priced from $1 to $50, all listed on NEW LIST #57.

NEW CUSTOMERS WANTED

I'm planning to expend my customer list from 6 to 12 during the next few months! If you are spending $50 to $100 (or gasp, more!) per month on cheap pre-1960 love, western, horror, war, crime, and "misc" comics than you need my lists. Send $2 (or a $1 unscratched lottery ticket) for the next mailings. ask for #57.

MAGAZINES

Just purchased 100's of magazines from an estate including adult, crime, movie, scandal, war, etc. Lots of stuff on Monroe, Bardot, Mansfield, Loren, Bettie Page, Liz Taylor, etc. Send $2 (or a $1 unscratched lottery ticket) and be over 18 to receive the next mailings. ask for Magazine list #58. I also buy and trade.

COMICS WANTED

Always buying pre-1965 that are heavily discounted. I have spent thousands of $$ at comicons and shops over the past few years Prefer bulk deals. condition, titles not important. Watta ya got?

Trader Tips

The Trader ads in CBG are an easy and economical way to advertise. Simply design your ad in a space that is 8½" wide by 8½" high and send it along with payment ($39.00 per Trader space) and complete reference form to:

COMICS BUYER'S GUIDE
Advertising Department
700 E. State Street
Iola, WI 54990-0001

We'll reduce your ad to the proper size and place it in the issue(s) you request. If no specific issue(s) is requested, we'll run your ad in the next available issue.

Keep in mind that the better your ad looks when you send it to us, the better it will look when it is reduced and published in CBG.

But I Digress

Fine, sure, Cochrane's upset and getting drunk and doesn't want to be idolized, but the hell with that, Data's been captured by The Borg! What's up with that? If you're doing parallel storylines, they should each have some degree of dramatic tension. You don't want your audience murmuring, "Oh God, not again," when you go to your B-plot.

And there are some occasional dramatic misfires. [Spoiler Warning: We don't know what trailers Peter has seen, but we didn't feel the following was given away in any of them.] At one point (as has been shown in various trailers) the notion is floated that the Enterprise should be evacuated and blown up, thereby handily ending the Borg menace. Picard resists the notion. In an incendiary scene with Woodard, Picard refuses — not because it would effectively strand them, which seems reasonable — but because "a line must be drawn here!"

A great scene, as noted, which is undercut on three levels. First, one wishes it had been between Picard and a character we had some emotional stake in — Dr. Crusher, for example, whose major contribution to the script is to set up an amusing cameo for someone else. Second, the prospect of blowing up the Enterprise carries no emotional punch. We saw Kirk blow up the original, and the immediate predecessor went nova in the previous film. And we've never seen this version of the Enterprise before we got into the theater. Fine, blow up the Enterprise E. Who gives a damn? Third, on an issue of such dramatic importance to him, we see Picard reverse himself faster than you can say "Bill Clinton."

[End Spoiler Warning.]

But for every moment that doesn't quite click, there are others that succeed far better than one could have hoped, such as over-the-top seduction scenes with Data and the Borg hive queen (Alice Krige), the hottest babe with a bolted-on head since The Bride of Frankenstein.

Overall, it's a film that's solid, diverting and crowd-pleasing — presuming it's a crowd of Star Trek fans. "Civilians" will basically feel that they've seen it done bigger and better in other films, and they won't be far wrong.

• Critics are busy trashing Jingle All The Way, in which we find Ah-nuld cast as a desperate father trying to find a much-sought-after toy for his son. As the critics busily compare it unfavorably to True Lies, Terminator, and other Arnold action fare, they neglect to note two things.

First, any parent who ever found himself in a similar predicament around the holidays (me included) can empathize. Second — it's a kid's movie. This is simply not a grown-up film. It's goofy, it's silly, and it becomes increasingly absurd. It could run on Nickelodeon. The only reason it's PG is that there's a sequence where a child is depicted in mortal danger (an automatic PG). Otherwise, this is a G movie. Arnold made a film that he could take his own kids to see without feeling uncomfortable, and I say good for him. The hell with the critics. I saw it in a theater packed with kids, and they had a ball.

And I bet not one of them knew how Romeo and Juliet ended.

• This is to note the passing of Mark Lenard, a wonderful actor and charming guy who died of cancer much too young. We had the opportunity of having dinner once with Mark and his lovely daughter and had a great time. And Mark once recorded a message for my answering machine in which he intoned, "This is Ambassador Sarek. Peter David cannot take your call right now." The first time that played on my machine, one person (whom I will mercifully not identify) said with all sincerity, "Peter, that is the worst Sarek impression I've ever heard."

Mark brought dignity and humor to whatever roles he played and taught acting, as well. He will be missed.

Peter David, writer of stuff, can be written to at To Be Continued Inc., P.O. Box 239, Bayport, NY 11705.

The advertisers' index is provided as a reader service. Occasional last minute changes may result in ads appearing on pages other than those listed here. The publisher assumes no liability for omissions or errors.

GENERAL INFORMATION

A. PAYMENT: Ads must be accompanied by payment. You may pay with a check, money order, or credit card.

B. CREDIT CARDS: We will accept the following credit cards: VISA, MasterCard, American Express, Discover.

C. DEADLINE: For all advertising is 4:00 p.m. each Tuesday, unless otherwise stated on deadline card.

D. TERMS: Cash with copy only. All advertisers must provide information for the confidential use of the publisher should questions arise.

E. CONTRACT RATES are available for 6, 13, 26, or 52 consecutive issues. Contract rates apply to fulfillment of contract items. Cancellation of a contract by the advertiser allows the publisher to reinvoice covered ads at the earned rate. This rate card is a part of the advertising contract.

F. MINORS are required to furnish a statement of responsibility from their parent or guardian before their advertising can be accepted.

G. ERRORS: Typewritten copy is recommended. The publisher is not responsible for errors resulting from long-hand or illegible copy, or changes submitted by telephone. The publisher's liability for any error shall not exceed the cost of the space occupied by that error.

H. LAYOUT and design services are provided by Krause Publications for advertisers who do not submit camera-ready copy. Due to the creative and subjective nature of these services, credit will not be allowed for conceptual variations.

I. GRADING: Items offered in any ad must be properly described as to condition, conforming to the standards set forth in Comics Buyer's Guide Price Guide. Advertisers may also exercise the option of grading offerings by applying a unique personal system, providing the standards applied are detailed in the ad to avoid confusion.

J. RETURN PRIVILEGE: Except as otherwise specified in any ad, an advertiser must accept the return of any merchandise postmarked within ten working days of its receipt by a customer.

K. P.O. BOX ADS are allowed, but the permanent home address, phone number and place of business of the advertiser must be filed with the publisher before advertisements may be printed.

L. SPECIAL PAGE POSITIONS are available at a premium, inquire for details.

M. ADVERTISING AGENCIES: There are no agency discounts.

N. CAMERA READY display ads qualify for a 15% discount. Copy must be ready for camera without additional paste-up or film work required. No charge for reproductions, enlargements or mail response key change. Classified Display, Comics Trader, Collector's Showcase and classified word ads do not qualify for the camera ready discount.

O. SPACE RESERVATIONS available for camera ready ads only. Must be made prior to ad deadline. Reserved space must be paid for even if ad does not arrive on time.

P. PRE-PRINTED INSERTS are available in Comics Buyer's Guide. Inquire for additional information and technical specifications.

Q. CIRCULATION is throughout the United States and Canada by subscription and single copy sales by agents in shops and other outlets.

R. PROOF OF PUBLICATION: Tear sheets of new display ads are mailed to those advertisers requesting this service. We regret we cannot provide this service to classified advertisers.

S. NOTE: All advertising orders are accepted subject to the terms and provisions of the current rate card. Krause Publications, Inc. reserves the right to decline advertising or suspend advertising privileges for such periods of time as in its discretion it sees fit, for any reason, whatsoever, irrespective of the validity of the reasons for such declination or suspension. The forwarding of an order is construed as acceptance of all rates and conditions in effect at the time the advertising is submitted. The publisher will not be bound by any conditions, printed or otherwise, appearing on any order for advertising space, billing instructions or copy instructions which conflict with its policies. Advertisers and advertising agencies assume liability for all content (including text representation and illustrations) of advertisements printed, and also assumes responsibility of any claims arising therefrom made against the publisher. It is the advertiser's or agency's responsibility to obtain appropriate releases on any item or individual pictured in their advertising. All agreements are subject to strikes, accidents, acts of God, or other contingencies beyond the publisher's control. The publisher reserves the right to edit any advertising copy to conform with its standard advertising policies, and to reject any ad which in its opinion is unethical or objectional for any reason.

Some recent movie-going experiences:

I took Gwen to see the new version of William Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet — which is kind of like saying William Shakespeare's West Side Story, because, although the basic elements are there, the film bears as much resemblance to a real staging of Romeo and Juliet as Kiss Me, Kate has to Taming of the Shrew. Actually, now that I think about it, there was probably more actual Shakespearean dialogue in Kiss Me, Kate.

The West Side Story comparison is apt, since Director Baz Luhrmann has set the story in the modern day, with the Montagues and the Capulets as warring corporations and the squabbling youngsters tooling around in hot sports cars, shooting at each other, and blowing up gas stations. It stars the kid-friendly pairing of Leonardo DiCaprio and Claire Danes.

I must admit I have no intrinsic problem with even a gutted version of Shakespeare. Anything that has a scintilla of a chance at getting even one kid per audience genuinely interested in The Bard is something I heartily support. Bottom line is: We went to an afternoon showing and the place was packed with teen-agers. Teens watching something purporting to be Shakespeare: Hey, at least it's something. How many of them would have been inclined to see anything that even hinted of Shakespeare if it didn't look like an extended MTV video and feature familiar young actors?

So to a certain extent it doesn't matter that Danes is, at most, adequate; that DiCaprio, despite all his efforts, never manages to wrap himself around the dialogue. He says his lines, he's prettier than Juliet, he doesn't bump into the furniture, and he's effective screaming "I am fortune's fool!" at the top of his lungs. But that's about it. And the actor playing Benvolio is on a par with the jock who auditions for the High School of Performing Arts in Fame by stumbling through Juliet's part in the balcony scene.

But this isn't intended as a commentary on the film. Rather, it was the audience that I found intriguing — to be specific, the audience as the film moved to its climax.

And no, I'm not going to put a spoiler warning, because, as I will shortly make clear, that's the whole point.

There was Juliet, laid out in the crypt, apparently dead. There was Romeo, crying his eyes out, about to down poison so he could join his love in death.

And I heard audience members muttering all around me, "Watch. She'll wake up just in time."

I couldn't believe it. I glanced around the audience, saw them smiling, confident that everything would work out. And that's when I realized they didn't know how it ended. I was in an audience full of people who were utterly clueless as to what was about to happen. They figured it was going to have a happy resolution. They didn't know Romeo and Juliet both ended up dead.

I was astounded. This goes beyond not knowing, say, the significance of "Rosebud." The average school system doesn't teach Citizen Kane. But how could the audience never have been exposed to one of Shakespeare's most renowned plays?

Not to mention that it went beyond cultural and/or scholastic ineptitude (and here's why I don't want to insult the intelligence of CBG readers with a spoiler warning), I couldn't comprehend why they didn't know the fate of the lovers because it's said right at the top of the film.

In one of the movie's cleverest bits of business, the famed prologue is delivered via a news anchor as if she were reporting the 11 o'clock news. Dutifully describing the feuding households of Verona, the newscaster says:

"From forth the final loins of these two foes

"A pair of star-crossed lovers take their life

"Whose misadventured piteous overthrows

"Doth with their death bury their parent's strife."

And just to make sure that the point is not lost on anyone, the prologue is immediately repeated, with the dialogue printed on the screen. You would have thought that key phrases such as "take their life" and "death" would have tipped the audience off.

But, no, the viewers remained oblivious of the star-crossed lovers' fate. There were startled faces all through the theater as Romeo, with a final kiss, died. Then Juliet picked up Romeo's gun, to complete the "take their life" part of the prologue.

And the audience, watching in confusion, muttered, "She's going to shoot him, too?"

I can't wait to see that group at the four-hour version of Hamlet.

• As Star Trek celebrates its 30th anniversary, who would have thought we'd actually have some fun stuff to see as a result? Granted, when I watched the Deep Space 9 episode "Trial and Tribble-lations," I was amused that it took five writers to produce a rehash of a script that had previously taken one writer — and that one writer's name didn't even show up until the closing credits, which I consider a shocking and insulting omission.

And I'm sure that I wasn't the only one who was waiting to see Forrest Gump, or perhaps Zelig, go wandering through the fight scene in the bar, as the same technology dropped DS9 characters into the original series episode. Indeed, I think it would be kind of cool if they released a new edition of the original episode with the revised DS9 scenes replacing the previous ones.

The other big anniversary release is, of course, Star Trek: First Contact. My favorite of the films remains Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, and this one — like Wrath — is something of a sequel. Actually, it's a sequel and a prequel (not to mention a floor wax and dessert topping). First Contact follows up the two-part Star Trek: The Next Generation episode "Best of Both Worlds," largely ignoring most of the subsequent Borg scripts (fortunately enough), while serving as a prequel to the original series episode "Metamorphosis," which introduced Zefram Cochrane (played by Glenn Corbett), the creator of warp drive.

In First Contact, The Borg have narrowly lost a major battle with the Federation. How many Borg actually exist remains unclear; apparently they never attack in more than one ship at a time. For a race that supposedly learns quickly, you'd think they'd have realized by now that, if sending one ship causes them to almost win, then sending two ships would pretty much seal the deal.

And then it turns out that The Borg possess time travel capabilities. By catapulting into the past, they change Earth's history, and the entire world is populated by nine billion beings, all Borg.

This of course makes the audience ask why The Borg would ever bother with a frontal assault. They could just go back to a time when a target planet hasn't the technology to mount a defense — and assimilate it.

But if you dwell on such matters too long, you're not going to be able to get past the first reel of the film. Time travel stories demand that we back-burner such considerations in order to accept them. This we should be willing to do, provided the story is diverting and entertaining enough (which Generations, offering similar time travel paradoxes and plot holes, was not).

In this case, First Contact most definitely is worth suspending disbelief for. Two storylines rapidly unfurl, one involving The Borg (in best Aliens style) taking over the Enterprise. Meantime, on planet Earth, an away team tries to guide Zefram Cochrane (now played by James Cromwell, who just doesn't look right without a runt pig next to him) to a destiny that will result in a first contact scenario which, in turn, leads to the formation of The Federation. (After 30 years, it's nice to finally get some hint of its origins. It's only the linchpin of the entire Star Trek universe, after all.)

Also along for the ride is Alfre Woodard as Cochrane's assistant, who is inadvertently brought up to the Enterprise and sucked into the battle for survival.

As opposed to the lethargy that seemed to have taken hold in the previous film, the cast seems crackling and ready to go in this film. This time Jonathan Frakes (Commander Riker) is at the directorial helm. I've been a fan of Frakes-as-director ever since a ST:TNG episode titled "Cause and Effect" — probably the laziest episode ever written, since the entire first act was repeated several times throughout the episode, as the Enterprise found itself stuck in a time loop. Frakes, by inventively reinterpreting identical scenes, saved the episode.

Here he's got a lot more to work with and does an excellent job with it — whether we're witnessing Deanna Troi (Marina Sirtis) getting completely blotto in a drinking bout, or watching Picard and Data (Brent Spiner) leading armed troops through the corridors of the Enterprise in search of the enemy.

Sometimes the mood shifts rattle the viewer, since the bug-hunt sequences are so tense, while the Earthbound storyline is practically bucolic. They're linked thematically, as we have Picard and Cochrane, both men of destiny who are seized by compulsions that threaten to destroy them, but the thematic links aren't quite enough to completely shake the feeling of hitting dramatic speed bumps every time we cut away from the ship.

[Spoiler Warning: Please read Peter's review of Star Trek: First Contact before proceeding. I discuss additional plot elements from the film.]

I saw Star Trek: First Contact the day it opened and, while I enjoyed it, there was a plot hole in First Contact that Peter didn't mention in his review, and I think it needs addressing. When The Borg beamed onto The Enterprise, why didn't internal sensors detect an unauthorized transport? As I recall, that is one of the major things that are constantly scanned for, especially when the ship is at red alert. I suppose the internal sensors could have been damaged by the trip through time (the long-range sensors were), but, then, somebody should have said that.

As for Peter's question of why The Borg didn't just use time travel to assimilate every culture, I think that it's possible that only the spherical Borg ship is capable of time travel or that the sphere could have been an experimental model or a newly built ship: again, something that should have been explained.

I haven't read the novelization of the movie yet, so I hope that at least some of this is cleared up there, much as the similar technical plot hole in Star Trek V was when it was learned that no ship had ever penetrated a certain energy barrier in space, yet The Enterprise and the Klingon ship slipped right through. The book covered it in a couple of pages, and the explanation would have taken only a few moments of screen time.

The Carl Barks Library in Color

Classic stories presented in classic style!

Back Issues available

Published mostly in chronological order and usually in complete runs from various Disney titles that originally appeared between 1942 and 1967, The Carl Barks Library in Color reprints the classic stories of the "Old Duck Man" in an oversize format for collectors. Because of the large number of books involved and the costs that would be incurred to keep them in print, it is anticipated that all of the issues below will eventually be no longer available. Indeed, some are already in very short supply. As there are no plans to go back to press with these comics, the prices below partially reflect quantities on hand as well as original issue prices, all of which are subject to change without notice. (Allow 4-8 weeks for delivery; 4-12 weeks, foreign.) Codes: DDFC (Donald Duck Four Color), DD (Donald Duck), MOC (March of Comics), VP (Vacation Parade), SF (Summer Fun), CP (Christmas Parade), VID (Vacation in Duckburg), MMFC (Mickey Mouse Four Color).
